FINNS GIRD TO FIGHT RUSSIA

Reports Hitler Orders Attack In West

Prefer Death to 'Slavery,' Tiny Country Warns

Navy Massed at Southwest Coast, Guns Mounted In Streets as Nation Waits Russia's Demands; Thousands Flee Larger Cities For Safety Haven.

(By United Press)

HELSINGFORS, Finland—Finland's little navy massed off the southwest coast today, troops mounted machine guns in streets and on public buildings and scores of thousands of non-combatants evacuated principal cities.

A Finnish envoy was nearing Moscow to receive Russian "friendship" demands.

It was realized that a fight by Finland, with 3,800,000 people, against the Soviet Union with 160,000,000 would be suicidal. But leaders, as they prepared to resist any threat to the nation's independence, said they and their countrymen would rather die free men than live as Russia's slaves.

The country held the first air raid alarm test of its history during the night. Naval units mobilized at Abo, on the southwest coast, ready to take troops and war materials to the Aaland islands, 75 miles out at the juncture of the Gulfs of Bothnia and Finland

Trucks were mobilized for troops. Soldiers mounted machine guns on roof-tops. The postoffice and telegraph buildings were heavily guarded. Anti-aircraft searchlight batteries were installed.

Scores of thousands of women and children, ill and aged, fled into the country from the big cities—Helsingfors (293,000 people), Tammerfors (75,000), Viborg (74,000) and Abo (73,000).

It was estimated that 124,000 persons were being evacuated from Helsingfors alone.

The government ordered the stock exchange to be closed until further notice.

Neighbor Nations Bow.

Estonia, Latvia, Lithunia, Finland's little neighbors on the other side of the Finnish gulf, had sent their foreign ministers to Moscow and bowed to the demands of the Soviet government. Finland had refused to send her foreign minister and has sent instead Juhu Paasikivi, minister to Sweden and a skillful negotiator. He had no authority to accept Russian "proposals."

"The others should have fought," a spokesman said. "We have fought the Russians for hundreds of years. Sometimes we have lost. Sometimes we have won. But always—we have fought."

Holding to every shred of hope that aid might come to them, Finnish people counted on the friendship of the United States, recalling its praise for Finland as the only nation among many that had paid its war debt installments promptly and in full.

An army of 255,000 men had been disposed at strategic points. A further force of 120,000 civil guard volunteers awaited a mobilization call for duty.

Small But Efficient.

To defend its coasts, Finland had a small but efficient navy. There were two coast defense ships, really light cruisers, of 4,000 tons with four 10-inch guns and 14 anti-aircraft guns; five

DEATH BY RAYS

Clevelander Destroys Invention He Perfected; It Killed Rats, Dog

COULD STALL PLANE IN MIDAIR

(By International News Service)

DENVER—A story of having witnessed demonstrations of a "death ray" so terrifying in its possibilities for destruction that it was destroyed by its inventor was related in Denver today by Alfred G. Burns, president of the Inventors of America.

Burns, whose home is in Alameda, Cal., said the device was perfected in 1933 by Dr. Antonio Longoria, wealthy Cleveland, O., scientist.

The Alameda inventor, who said he has been a close friend of Dr. Longoria for 10 years, declared he had been invited to two of the "death ray" demonstrations. He related:

"I saw the apparatus destroy mice and rats and once saw a full-grown dog die instantly by the invisible ray.

"Dr. Longoria said that the ray turned every red corpuscle in the body at which it was directed to white corpuscles, which, of course, meant instant death. It was painless."

According to Burns, Dr Longoria, who in 1936 was reported to have sold a new welding process for approximately $8,000,000, said he had stumbled upon the ray accidentally, and that it killed without pain by changing blood to a useless substance. He told Burns that it had killed pigeons in flight at a distance of four miles and that he had later destroyed the device and all papers connected with it because of the possibilities it had for wrecking civilization. He declared he would never have anything more to do with it.

"Dr. Lorgonia expressed the opinion," Burns related, "that the ray would be effective up to 10 miles.

"It had a demagnetizing effect on electrical devices or anything that carried a coil. It could have stalled an airplane motor in midair."

Burns said Dr. Longoria also has devised and now is experimenting with an electrical treatment for cancer which has not yet been presented to the medical profession.

"Dr. Longoria told me," Burns said, "that he would not offer the treatment for acceptance until he has cured a thousand patients with it."

Won't Recreate It, Scientist Says.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Dr. Antonio Longoria, Cleveland scientist, will have nothing to do with recreating a "death ray" machine, he declared today, although he saw the possibilty that "death rays" may be used as an awful weapon of war if the European conflict continues.

"It is quite possible that someone may stumble across the particular electric wave I used," he said. "I found it accidentally myself, and I certainly am not proud of the discovery."

NAZIS TO TRY TO SEIZE LAND FRENCH HOLD

Knickerbocker Says Fuehrer's Orders Demanding Victory 'At Any Price.'

AIMS AT SAAR AREAS

Report Says Troops Will Then Prepare for Drive Through Holland, Switzerland.

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
(INS Staff Correspondent)

PARIS—Adolf Hitler has abandoned his peace offensive.

He has ordered immediate preparations to reconquer "at any price" the terrain in front of the Siegfried line now occupied by French troops.

Thereby he intends to "retrieve Germany's honor," which is injured by the presence of French troops on German soil. But he also wishes to pin as many French as possible to positions along the Maginot line while his principal attack goes around the wings through Holland, Belgium and Switzerland.

This information comes from an anti-Nazi intelligence service operating through a neutral country. This service, though obviously biased, has distinguished itself in the past by the accuracy and speed of its information.

It gives its report in the following form:

"Hitler issued this general directive to the army dated Oct. 9:

"Since the democracies have shown themselves unyielding, and since the honor of the German army has been impugned through occupation of part of the Saar and the Palatinate, I here order:

"'1. Reconstitution of planned advance posts before the Siegfried line at any price. Commanders will keep me constantly informed of the progress of their preparations for attack.

"'2. The attack shall be accomplished through four armies from the direction of Saarburg, Saarbruecken, Pirmasens and Landau, with the goal the advanced terrain in front of the Siegfried line.

"'3. At the same time, preparations shall be expedited to accomplish a strong attack over Holland and Switzerland and to attack over the Rhine opposite Freiburg. These preparations shall be perfected by the time the advanced terrain in front of the Siegfried line has been reoccupied.'"

Sweden, Alarmed, Keeps Men Under Arms

Alarmed by the disquiet in northern Europe, Sweden has ordered the 100,000 reserves whose normal period of service ends Oct. 15, kept under arms. A detachment of Swedish troops are pictured, above, marching toward the border. Lower view shows a battery of Swedish anti-aircraft guns rolling along a Swedish road. Map shows the Scandinavian countries, of which Sweden is the central part, which may next be affected by forthcoming European events. Sweden fears that if Finland falls to the Russians, either by diplomatic or military means, the entire Scandinavian peninsula will be next on Stalin's list for acquisition.

Man Found Dead In Home, Inquiry Opens

Loudonville Bachelor Had Been Dead For 24 Hours; Wound Couldn't Have Been Self-Inflicted, Prosecutor Says.

LOUDONVILLE—Ashland county authorities were investigating the circumstances of the death of Lewis E. Sprang, 58, who was found dead in a room of his home here yesterday.

There were wounds on his head and blood stains in the room. Sprang had been dead about 24 hours, according to Coroner George Emery.

Whether officials believed Sprang had killed himself or had been the victim of a fatal attack, officials would not say.

Ashland County Prosecutor A. Ross Siverling, who came here yesterday and saw the body said today "it would have been impossible for Sprang to have inflicted the wound himself."

He also said he believed Sprang died from loss of blood rather than from the force of a blow.

The man had a "deep cut, extending from the left ear to the crown of the head" according to Marshal Bert Conrad, one of the two men who broke into Sprang's home, where he lived alone, and found him lying in a pool of blood about three feet from a davenport in the living room.

Conrad and Mayor E. L. Smith broke into Sprang's house after a brother, Amos, reported to them that he could see part of a body on the floor, but couldn't get into the house.

They said that after Sprang

REPORTS ON WAR

Secretary Says Britain Sent 158,000 Troops to France.

LONDON—(AP)—War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha told the house of common today that Britain had sent an expeditionary force of 158,000 men to France during the first five weeks of the war.

Just before Hore-Belisha spoke Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, declared the balance now was in Britain's favor in the war on merchant shipping.

"From Sept. 24 to Oct. 9 we have lost by U-boat action 5,809 tons and we have taken from the enemy 13,615 tons, leaving a balance in our favor of 7,806 tons," Churchill said.

There have been no British shipping losses since Oct. 9, Churchill said.

WINNERS DRINK

And the Losers Only Get a Smell In 'Bottle' Poker Game.

ASHEVILLE, N. C.—(AP)—Police Court Judge Sam H. Cathey has ruled it is legal to play cards for drinks and smells—just so the drinks and smells aren't on the table.

In this game the winner gets a drink of liquor on each winning hand and the loser only a sniff at the bottle. The judge's decision freed four men of gambling charges.

3 DEAD, 62 HURT

School Bus Plunges Over 75-Foot Embankment.

WAR, W. Va.—(AP)—A disabled school bus careened from a highway and plunged down a 75-foot embankment today, killing three students and injuring 62 other persons, some critically.

The big, 70-passenger machine fell on the Norfolk and Western Railway tracks and smashed to bits.

The dead were identified as Maxine Beavers of Bartley, 18-year-old high school senior, crushed under the wreckage; Lucille Mullins of Raysal, who died in Stevens clinic at Welch; and seventeen-year-old Ernest Wood of Bartley, who succumbed in Grace hospital at Welch.

Akron Woman Faces Murder Charge, Tells of Brutality.

AKRON—(INS)—Climaxing what she asserted were fifteen years of brutality on the part of her husband, Mrs. Maud Hubbard, 42, mother of four children, today faced a charge of slaying him with a revolver she bought six weeks ago for self-protection.

Held without bail in Summit county jail, Mrs. Hubbard, charged with first degree murder, awaited action of the grand jury.

PARACHUTE JUMPER DIES

AKRON —(INS)— Once holder of the world's record for parachute jumping, Mrs. Delila Jenkins, 29, was dead today after an illness of several years.

PERSONAL TAX PROBE ORDERED

Court Instructs Auditor to Assess Property of Black Estate for Taxation.

The Fifth district court of appeals had opened the way today for an investigation of personal taxes paid on Richland county properties from 1926 to 1931 inclusive by granting a writ of mandamus against County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe, ordering him to assess for taxation personal property in the estate of the late Frank B. Black.

As a result of the writ, granted yesterday following a hearing in Canton, Wolfe said he will examine records of personal taxes paid on other county properties during the six-year period. The writ, however, specifically instructs the auditor to assess for taxation the personal property in the Black estate.

The investigations are expected to produce several thousand dollars in taxes for the county and its subdivisions. Wolfe said, since during the period from 1926 to 1931 a state law, now ruled unconstitutional, exempted certain personal property, including stocks and securities, from taxation.

The mandamus was granted in

GIVES SELF UP

Fugitive In Cleveland Policy Game Probe Surrenders at Jail.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— John Angersola, one of 23 persons indicted April 26 after a 12-month investigation of Cleveland's $5,000,000-a-year policy game, gave himself up today at county jail.

The surrender of Angersola, charged with blackmail and extortion, left only six of the 23 still at large.

ONE BUS CITED

Patrol Orders School Vehicle Replaced, 56 Others OK'd.

Only one of 57 Richland county school buses inspected last week by the State Highway patrol was ordered replaced, the patrol's report to Boyd Robinson, county superintendent of schools, showed today.

Ten of the buses were given an A grade and 46 were placed in the B classification. The bus that was listed as unsatisfactory was given a C grade. It is a 1937 model owned by John Newcomer and used to transport pupils to the Springfield township schools.

The patrol recommended the installation of clocks on the dashboards of all the buses and cited inadequate heaters, windshield wipers and first aid equipment as the major defects.

EMBARGO FOES GET CHALLENGE

Clark Says Aid for Britain, France 'Secret Assumption' Behind Repeal Move.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Sen. Bennett C. Clark, (D. Mo.) challenged the senate today to recognize frankly that the "secret assumption" behind efforts to change the neutrality act is to permit the United States to aid Great Britain and France in the European war.

He urged the senate to reject the suggested change and to avoid involvement in old world strife.

"I not only do not believe it is our duty, but I think that it would be suicidal for us to undertake to protect the world-flung colonial empires of France and Great Britain," Clark said.

He demanded enactment of a neutrality law with "foolproof and holeproof" provisions for embargo on arms, munitions and implements of war and a strict cash-and-carry trade in other commodities.

Two more senators definitely announced their position on arms embargo repeal today. One, Sen. Vic Donahey, (D. O.) said that he would vote against repeal while Sen. Chan Gurney, (R., S. D.) said he would support the administration's stand on the issue.

IDLE FOURTH DAY

19,000 Dodge Employes Sent Home by Company Again.

DETROIT—(INS)— Ten thousand Dodge plant workers were sent home today for the fourth straight day as production tie-ups continued in the plant.

Chrysler Corporation officials renewed their charges of a production slow down against the CIO's Auto Workers' union, while union leaders again countered with the charge that the corporation speeded the assembly line beyond the capacity of the workers.

BEHEADED BY NAZIS

BERLIN —(AP)— Guenter Haupt convicted of spying on German defense works for an unnamed foreign country, was beheaded today. He was the fifth spy executed here this week.

BERLIN: French Stand Bared, Peace Hopes Fade, Nazis Say

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(AP)—The German air force today was ordered to continue its attacks on British warships blockading the North sea. Official quarters called the order one of the most important German announcements since the war on Poland ended with Warsaw's capitulation.

(By Associated Press)

BERLIN—Informed Germans acknowledged today that prospects for early peace talks "would not be so bright" if Prime Minister Chamberlain supports Premier Daladier's rejection of Adolf Hitler's conditional peace proposals.

Chamberlain speaks before the house of commons tomorrow. Daladier spoke yesterday over the radio. Summarizations of the French premier's speech were printed in the morning newspapers.

Daladier declared France and Britain would "continue to fight" until Germany gave definite guarantees of security for a "lasting peace in Europe."

Many Germans regarded the speech as "something less than satisfactory" but hastily added that there had been no official comment.

The general impression of observers here was that British views had not been fully formulated.

A close watch was being kept on British political developments prior to the Chamberlain speech and in some quarters it was thought the dominions were playing an important part in the formulation of policies.

PARIS: Germans and French Clash In Hand-to-Hand Fights

(By United Press)

PARIS—German patrols roved the Rhineland front all night, frequently rushing the French lines in quest of prisoners, but all were driven back in hand grenade and hand-to-hand fights, it was reported today.

Two German parties of 150 men each charged French positions in the woods south of Saarbruecken and south of Pirmasens but retired leaving 60 dead and wounded behind.

An authoritative source said the Germans had failed to take a single French prisoner in the past 24 hours of sharp engagements. The Germans seemed bent on taking prisoners, presumably so they could be questioned about the strength of the French lines.

German artillery laid down heavy barrages ahead of the patrols and French batteries replied with "solid curtains of fire" across no man's land, it was reported.

These engagements were entirely localized, however, and there had been no mass infantry action.

An unusual number of German reconnaissance airplanes were reported active over the French lines. They were on photographic missions. French anti-aircraft guns and pursuit planes were said to have been kept busy all day yesterday driving them away.

It was the fourth successive day of patrol fighting and intense artillery action on the Saar front.

The German raiders were using hand grenades freely and the French were replying with the same weapons.

Dorothy Lamour Pleads for a Skidless Sarong, Hers Slipped, Nearly Fell Off

It's Really Tough to Climb Trees In Them, Actress Finds.

(By United Press)

HOLLYWOOD — Miss Dorothy Lamour appealed to the better natures of her bosses today for a sarong that'll stay up. Her's won't.

Even when it does, it feels like its about to slide and that is tough on a lady's peace of mind.

Only yesterday the lovely Miss Lamour was climbing precariously on the limb of a tree in the manufacture of a movie called "Typhoon," when—whoa! something slipped. There flashed through her mind a vision of herself in her birthday suit in front of 43 directors, cameramen, carpenters, and kibitzers. So she grabbed for the sarong, instead of the tree, and gravity did the rest. She landed kerplunk.

That produced a blue spot, now turning purple, which her sarong barely covers.

Miss Lamour's current sarong consists of one square yard of silk, which depends for its anchorage upon one hook and one eye. When it is wrapped loosely, it feels dangerous. And when she dives into the water, as she frequently has to do, the hook invariably parts company from the eye. Then she has to stay under water until she can effect repairs.

"The original sarong as worn by the native girls in the South Sea Islands was made of cotton cloth and held up by a solid secure knot," Dorothy said.

Paramount Pictures, Inc., ditched cotton and substituted silk, on the theory that it would cling closer and hence have a better pictorial effects. The sarong specialists also discarded the knot, which was bulky.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I became so completely absorbed in the way the problem was working itself out that I did not hear or see Lillian until she laid her hand upon my shoulder, and I looked up to see her fully dressed in another gown suited for an old woman. She was smiling indulgently at me.

"I see it worked," she said. "Do you want to finish it? If you're nearly through, we have time, I think."

"Indeed, no!" I jumped to my feet and scrambling the cards together, put them back in their case and handed them back to Lillian. "They've served their purpose wonderfully, but now I'm wild to get started on this—excursion."

"Call it anything you like," she said. "Let's go back to Harry."

"All set?" he inquired, getting to his feet.

"Ready for the slaughter," Lillian told him.

"Did you bring your combs and harpins?"

"Right here," Lillian said, producing them.

"Then, Lady Fair," he said, giving me an extravagant mocking bow, "if you'll just sit down in this chair"—he indicated one opposite that from which he had just risen—"I'll get busy on you immediately. Lil, old darling, will you park yourself over there and check up on the job?"

"I'll do my little best," his wife replied, "but don't think you'll need much checking."

"You never know," her husband murmured absently, and then he picked up my comb and began to manipulate my hair with swift, deft handling.

"It'll take some doing," he said, as if to himself. "Your hair's heavy, but I think we can click."

"You couldn't get it in less space," she said. "You'll be able to fit a wig over that all right. She might almost be bald. Madge, you ought to see yourself! But we're not going to let you until you're all finished."

"And now, Lady Fair," Harry said, "please shut your eyes and don't open them until I tell you to. Some of this stuff wouldn't be so good if it got in your gorgeous lamps."

"Eyebrows and lashes?" he asked Lillian, and she replied succinctly: "As is." He rejoined, "I thought so," and then tapped me smartly on the shoulder.

"Okay, Beautiful. You may open your lamps now."

I availed myself of his suggestion and he lifted the wig with no touch of iron gray tinging its silvery whiteness, and settled it down over my hair. Then, after adjusting it until it exactly suited him, he attached it to my hair beneath with such a multitude of hairpins and other fasteners that I knew not even a hurricane could detach it.

Stepping back, he scanned his handiwork carefully, then looked at his wife for her verdict.

"Perfect," she accoladed. "Come over here, Madge. There's a full-length mirror on the other side of this door. I carefully jockeyed it away from you before. Now come and look at yourself."

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, Oct. 12.

Excitement and high tension are forecast for this day by the nature of the lunar transits. The effort to launch new and important projects may give great stimulus to the forces and faculties. The danger is from impetuous or excessive application of these forces, which may run counter to the desires and policies of those in power, or of employers or others whose influence is desirable. Some critical changes in plans may be demanded. Exercise of tact and calm deliberation may prove advantageous.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves deep in a year in which important creative urges may crave expression, probably in entirely new directions and on a large scale. These require the co-operation of superiors, employers or those in authority. This support is dubious unless maneuvered with cleverness and deliberation, rather than high-pressure tactics. Some rather perilous changes of plans and tactics may be demanded. Shun excesses and over-enthusiasm.

A child born on this day may be energetic, aggressive, ardent and audacious, with much native talent and creative force.

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T BE INTIMIDATED

Doubles scare the life out of some players, shattering their faith in their partners and keeping them out of contracts they can make. One pretty good rule to remember, if you have a fair partner, is to depend on what he says when you are vulnerable and the opponents are not.

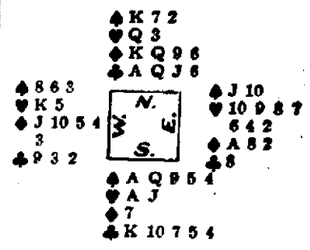

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

East and West, with their weak hands came to life at a very early stage on this deal. North bid 1-Diamond. South 1-Heart. North 1-Spade and East doubled. After South called 2-Hearts, West came to life with a double. North thereupon calling 2-No Trumps and South 3-No Trumps. After West passed this. North ran 12 consecutive tricks and berated his partner for not helping toward the slam. The opponents had really scared North and South out of their birthright. North was probably most to blame. South's heart rebid sounded weak, but his raise from 2-No Trumps to 3-No Trumps guaranteed some strength. North then could have made a mild slam try at 4-Diamonds. South would have raised that to 5-Diamonds, whereupon 6-Diamonds should have been North's bid.

Roosevelt Joins In Attack on Ohio Pension Proposal

URGES STATE TO STAND BY FEDERAL PLAN

President Also Scores West's 'Ham and Eggs' Plan, Hits 'Utopian' Ideas.

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt is backing New Deal social security policies today against California's "ham and eggs" plan, Ohio's proposal to pay $50 to everyone over 60 and other similar old age relief methods.

He hopes they will not be adopted by the various states.

Recalling that he had termed the California project fantastic and utopian, Roosevelt told his press conference yesterday that judgment went for all similar undertakings.

California votes Nov. 7 on the "Ham and Eggs" plan. Its other slogan is $30 every Thursday. Gov. Culbert L. Olson and Sen. Sheridan Downey, both Democrats, were elected in California last year with "Ham and Eggs" support.

New Deal Embarrassed.

Espousal of unorthodox relief and money projects by Democratic candidates in California has been a source of considerable embarrassment to the administration.

Last year's election presented a difficult situation when Downey and Olson obtained California nominations. Roosevelt repudiated the pension scheme but always spoke approvingly of Olson and Downey as "liberals."

Ohio votes Nov. 7 on the Bigelow pension plan. The president was advised before yesterday's press conference that he would be asked about the California pension plan which soon is to go to the voters and he was prepared to answer. He gestured to a sheaf of papers on his desk and explained it was the White House file on "Ham and Eggs."

William D. Hassett of the White House secretariat showed the file to correspondents after the conference with the understanding that its contents, although representing views expressed some time ago, still precisely presented Roosevelt's opinions.

Hits at Short Cuts.

There was a letter to George Creel dated Oct. 3, 1939.

"As for the '$30 every Thursday' plan," he wrote, in part, "I have never concealed the fact that I am against it.

"I hope it will not be tried because on the one hand I feel it will not work and on the other hand I feel quite sure that we can evolve from the social security statute methods of obtaining security for old age which will work better."

In a radio address on Aug. 15, Roosevelt urged that old people be not "misled by short cuts to Utopia."

The next month he called the "Ham and Eggs" plan unsound from the financial point of view, explaining that a study of it had been made for his information.

West Visits Here But Talks Coal Now Instead of Politics

Charles West, former undersecretary of the interior, but still "Uncle Charley" to his friends in the 17th congressional district which he once served as congressman, stopped off in Mansfield yesterday long enough to talk about his coal mine in Muskingum county.

West, who resigned from the interior department a year ago when he split with his chief, Harold Ickes, has been out of politics, off the federal payroll and out of the public eye for the past year. His personal friendship with the Roosevelts, however, keep the president's former liason officer in close touch with the White House and the president's "inner circle."

"Right now I'm largely interested in selling coal," he said yesterday. "My brother and I have a mine in Muskingum county, west of Zanesville, and we're selling to manufacturing consumers in Ohio cities."

If West has any aspirations now toward a seat in the U. S. senate he isn't talking about it. When informed that there had been speculations in the state and especially in his old district, as to his appearing in the senatorial picture next year, he said:

"Well, this IS interesting—tell me more." Despite the fact that he has no definite political plans for the future, he still resides in Washington.

The former congressman was accompanied by Mrs. West and they were en route from Mt. Vernon to Cleveland.

Bates Orders Police to Patrol City School Zones.

He pointed out that state law prohibits a speed greater than 20 miles an hour when passing a school during recess or during the time when children are going or coming from the building. He said police have been instructed to see that it was observed.

BRIDGE BUILDING PROGRAM OPENS

Four Spans to Be Erected on State Routes in County at Cost of $75,000.

Work was scheduled to start today on a $75,000 state highway bridge program in Richland county, Murray D. Shaffer, Ashland division state highway engineer, said today.

Four bridges will be constructed under the program, beginning with two on route 97 northwest of Lexington. Another will be built on route 39 about two miles northwest of Mansfield and the fourth on route 61 south of Shelby.

Contract for the two at Lexington which will be built first was let to Rankin and Miller, Ashland contractors, for $16,221. The other two contracts have not been awarded.

Temporary "run-around" bridges have been built on route 97 to serve traffic while the two new structures are under construction. Work on the bridges will continue through the fall and winter as the weather permits, Shaffer said.

The bridges on route 39 near Mansfield and the one on route 61 south of Shelby were included in the nine projects county commissioners asked the state highway department to construct this year.

SENT TO PEN

WOOSTER—(AP)—Colley Peterman, 45, convicted of placing dynamite under the home of E. A. Hotchkiss, Smithville school superintendent, after Peterman's son was expelled from school, was under sentence today of one to 20 years in Ohio penitentiary.

ESCAPED SLAYER SURRENDERS, FIGHTS TO EVADE LIFE TERM

DALLAS, Texas—Insisting he seeks only "justice, and a chance to live an honest life," Richard Gallogly, convicted "thrill" slayer and scion of a wealthy Atlanta family, today prepared to fight extradition to Georgia and return to the prison from which he fled Friday.

Gallogly, whose escape while he was being transferred from an Atlanta hospital to a Georgia state prison brought charges of favoritism and coddling, gave himself up in Dallas yesterday, announcing to Sheriff Smoot Schmid:

"I fled to Texas to get justice. If the Texas governor refuses to grant extradition, I'll have a chance to live an honest life."

He denied he was guilty of the crime for which he already has served ten years of a life sentence, and said the two guards from whose custody he escaped, had not helped him.

Gallogly said his attractive young wife whom he married four months ago, had driven to Dallas with him, but had left him a few hours before he gave himself up.

The prisoner had been taken to the hospital on his plea he was tubercular, but was being sent back to prison after doctors said they could find nothing wrong with him.

Although Gallogly was said to have produced a gun to make good his escape, he said he had bluffed the guards with "a little black stick."

Gallogly's mother, Mrs. Worth E. Yankey, who with his wife had been permitted to ride with him back to prison, refused to join her son, and was left with the guards when the prisoner and his wife drove away.

JURY CONVENES

Hears 5 Charges Against Ex-Ashland Loan Head Friday.

ASHLAND — The Ashland county grand jury will hear five charges against Ray Reinhardt, 35, former manager of the Ashland branch of the Mansfield Provident company, when it convenes Friday morning.

Reinhardt was arrested on Sept. 24 on two affidavits signed by the Provident company, one for forgery and one for operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent. Bond fixed at $2,000 was provided by Paul Fike and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Epstein, and Reinhardt was released.

He was arrested a second time a week later on three other charges, one of embezzlement and two for forgery, totalling $3,773. Request of the bondsmen to be relieved was granted by Judge H. E. Culbertson. Unable to raise a total bond of $4,000, Reinhardt has since been in jail.

Several other cases also are scheduled to come before the jury Friday.

Supt. Arthur L. Glattke said two years time would be added to his sentence as a penalty.

LAFF-A-DAY

CONSERVATION HEADS TO LEASE RESERVOIR SITE

Expect 1,350 Acres to Provide Ideal Fishing and Duck Hunting Grounds.

The state conservation commission took steps today to lease the 1,350-acre Charles Mill reservoir in Richland and Ashland counties for a fish and game area.

State Conservation Commissioner Don Waters was authorized by the commission to lease the site for a five-year period with the right to renew at the expiration of the five years.

Waters is expected to contract immediately with the Muskingum conservancy district for the recreation area which has been closed to fishermen.

The lake, recently stocked with fish, is expected to provide ideal fishing waters while the inlets around the lake probably will be the best duck hunting grounds in this section of Ohio, sportsmen said.

The lake, located on a branch of the Mohican river, formed behind the Charles Mill dam, one of several built by the Muskingum conservancy district in a flood control program.

The commission closed to hunting Crawford island and five acres on Blackberry island, both in Lake Laramie, from Oct. 15 to March 1 so that the areas could become a refuge for ducks.

Plan to Transfer Rabbits.

It authorized the expenditure of $2,500 for materials for building 4,000 rabbit traps and carrying cases. The devices will be used to transport rabbits from tickly populated game management areas to other locations deficient in cottontails.

This procedure will be resorted to in lieu of buying rabbits from the west, as the conservation commission has done in the past. Some conservation officials were inclined to believe that the western rabbits brought tularemia into Ohio.

The commission also approved Waters' plan to plant, in cooperation with Forester O. A. Alderman, food-bearing shrubs to prevent erosion and the deposit of silt in fishing streams.

Dr. T. H. Langlois, chief of management bureau, and Chief Engineer W. E. Owens recommended to the commission seven projects for the creation of lakes, principally at the headwarters of streams, for fish propagation.

The telephone firm, named defendant, is represented by Attys. Henkel and Gongwer of Mansfield and Wilbur Benoy of Columbus. Attys. Harrington, Huxley and Smith of Youngstown are counsel for Mrs. Rasmussen.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Pegler Gives His Ideas on What Repeal of Arms Embargo Will Do For Us

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—It looks as though the arms embargo will be repealed all right, and when it happens no man on the opposition side may say that his team was the victim of a rush act or high pressure or otherwise was denied the benefits of free discussion and sober judgment.

Senators rarely change position on any issue in response to the logic or eloquence of their colleagues, and, as far as the statesmen themselves are concerned, the vote will represent about the same division of opinion that existed when the question was put to them.

It ceased to be a partisan issue when the war actually began, and the question whether the war would have begun at all if the American law had been otherwise is one of those scuttle-butt propositions which may be argued forever but never can be solved.

Hitler alone can give the answer to that, but the man is such a liar that nobody would believe him whatever he might say, and, anyway, all that is down the drain now because the war did begin. When that happened the question ceased to be one of partisan politics and became one of national defense, although that phase of it has not received sufficient emphasis.

The army maneuvers at Plattsburg were a terrible fiasco, and while the inexperience and consequent clumsiness of the soldiers were placarded to the nation and, incidentally, to the rest of the world, little was said about the amount and kind of equipment now available.

Certainly the Allies are not the potential enemy of this nation, while Germany, Russia and Japan undoubtedly are, and a munitions and arms industry built up at the expense of the Allies would not only help them to break up that threat but would stand ready to serve American needs.

There is much propaganda and some dumb, honest belief that Hitler's Germany means no harm to anyone and only wants to live in peace and prosperity, but anyone who believes that forgets that Britain and France were caught almost unarmed and had to put up with the arrogant impositions from a dictator armed to the teeth.

He was constantly strutting his divisions, boasting of his invincible will and speaking of the exhaustion of his patience in a manner which plainly said that the rest of the world lived in peace only by his kind permission. Finally the Allies just had to fight him, because it was unsafe to go on unmobilized and impossible to pursue the ways of peace with men and industry mobilized for war.

It is asking Americans to be just too broadminded to request that they regard the Allies and Germany as six of one and half a dozen of the other. The Allies may have a fault or two—as who hasn't—but the Nazi idea challenges the American at every point, and it is the enemy of Americanism and the aggressor in this enmity, at that.

The danger that the United States might be drawn into war would seem to diminish in proportion to the success of the Allies and the improvement of American strength.

It happens that the United States, having no envy of any nation or any territorial ambitions, isn't the arbiter of the question whether to go to war or not. The decision will be made by the goon countries, just as Hitler decided the same matter for Britain and France.

If the prosperity that comes of war trade is bad prosperity—which always must be followed by a compensating slump, possibly by disorders at home—that is just one of the risks of existence in a world whose decisions for war or peace are made by marauding dictators.

Hitler has made one thing plain—that military weakness is fatal to peace in any nation against which he develops a grudge. He talked and wrote big about his hatred of Russia, but Russia was well heeled, and when the time came for him to pick his enemy the enemy wasn't Russia at all but the British, who were so weak that they flinched and backed away at Munich in order to gain a year's time for preparation.

Certainly this is no New Deal measure that is about to pass now. It is an expression of the majority sentiment of the country, agreed on by many who hate the New Deal and is more likely to prevent an attack on this country's interests by the aggressor and thus to avert war than to shoo us in.

It would be interesting, and probably shocking, to know just how many shell and anti-aircraft guns the United States possesses at this moment and how long it would take to produce enough to meet an enemy.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—When it comes to friend-winning there's no equal in town to Gene Autry, the man nobody (in Hollywood) knows.

And when it comes to influencing people—at least to seeing his movies—Gene is all right, too.

The other day I went to lunch with Gene at a valley eatery, air-cooled but still considerably warmed by Gene's apparel. You can't believe the Autry outfits until you see them.

Gene's costume was comparatively Mild, at that. It was the Wildest I'd ever seen, but he said it was just a run-of-the-mill outfit. Ten-gallon hat, of course, and red leather boots, and a quiet plaid shirt, white with stripes; a handkerchief boy tie, while with red and green design, and a suit of bright orange.

"People expect a cowboy to dress this way, that's all," said Gene. "They'd be disappointed if I didn't."

Gene and Mrs. Autry were recently returned from a tour of England, Scotland and Ireland, and the folks at the lunchroom had the glad hand out. Gene had his hand out, too, to all the folks.

The place was crowded with a bus-load of tourists, and more than once as we ate and talked one of them would come forward with an autograph book. Gene had his pencil going, and his smile, even before they'd asked him to sign.

"Glad to do it!" he said to all.

We ordered the house specialty, the Gene Autry Cowboy Sandwich. Filet, shoestring potatoes, French-fried onions, boiled tomato. Gene said he didn't think it up, the house did, and named it after him.

Gene said he had a great time in the British Isles, and incidentally picked up the rights to a new song, "South of the Border," for use in a picture. Gene likes to use song titles for his pictures, and this one he thinks especially good. The English lads who wrote it have never seen Mexico, or north of the border for that matter, but it's still a good song, said Gene. Gene is making a couple more westerns before he goes into "Jubilo" with Jane Withers at 20th Century—first picture he'll have made away from Republic. He thinks Jane is a swell little kid. He thinks the old Will Rogers film story will be something different—they're going to make the hero a cowboy as he was in the first Rogers (silent) version.

Outside, the bus-load of tourists is gathered in force. They have books and cameras out. They don't gang him, they do it politely, and Gene is, as usual, "glad to do it." He's glad, too, to turn around and grin for the touring cameras, and to let the folks know, when they ask him, that his next picture is "Rovin' Tumbleweeds."

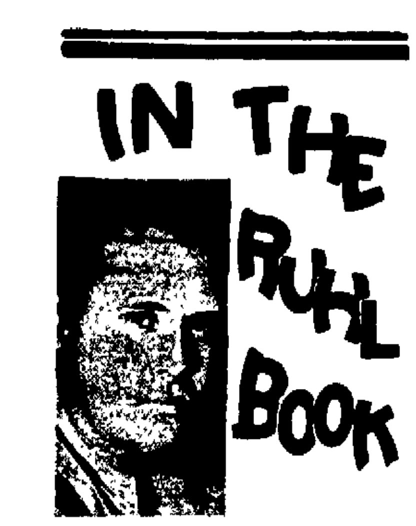

"Oh, we'll watch for it," beams one tourist, "but then we never miss any of 'em."

And Gene gets into his big wine-colored sedan, fancy to the last gadget, and drives off waving. He has made a bus-load of friends, and indirectly a thousand more who'll be told about him by this bus-load.

HAROLD (PIE) TRAYNOR relinquished the management of the Pittsburgh Pirates at the end of the season.

Traynor is said to have worked himself into a nervous wreck trying to salvage something from the shambles of a team that came so close to the National league championship last year.

Many believed he was on the way out last winter, but Traynor is somewhat of an institution in Pittsburgh, having been with the Pirates since 1920. He will be given an executive position in the Pittsburgh system.

THE QUESTION BOX

To "J. V."—Mansfield semi-pro teams defeated Shelby 13-0 and 7-0 in 1919 and 7-6 in 1926.

To "Yankee Fan"—Hank Severeid was the Yankee catcher in the 1926 World's Series, with Pat Collins the No. 2 receiver.

To "Indian"—The first major league game was played in Cleveland stadium July 31, 1932, Lefty Grove beating Mel Harder, 1 to 0. The next day Rube Walberg outpitched Wes Ferrell, 1 to 0.

Michigan may not win the Big Ten title, but the followers of the Wolverines appear convinced that Fritz Crisler's boys are going to do big things this fall. Ticket sales at Michigan are up 150 per cent.

Eddie Brietz says it is too bad that one of the best looking freshman babies Marquette has had in 20 years will not be on the squad this season. When the time came to fill in a form as to his pop's name, address, etc., this guy wrote: "Decreased" . . (Yep, the academics got him.)

Here's a little poem or song authored by "some sophomore girls" of Crestline high (Tune "The Man on the Flying Trapeze"):

He crawls through the line with the clumsiest feet,
He sees a tough guy, and the ground and him meet.
His actions are horrid (they match with his face.)
He thinks that he does it with grace.

He carries a comb in his left shoulder pad,
To have his hair mussed would be terribly sad.
He missed the football and he fell
on his face;
Ask me no questions; I'm telling
the truth,
The guy's in love with himself.

Oh, he bows to the crowd after each touchdown is made,
Whether he sat on the bench, or
he laid in the shade,
His actions are clumsy; his plays
are so dumb,
Better he played on a big bass drum.

A Minneapolis newspaper says that at least four Big Ten coaches "will be running want ads in December." . . . but doesn't name them.

Poling Knows His Ohio Grid Clubs.

JUST SHORTS: Dick Poling, News-Journal football expert, did right well in his first week's selections, picking 22 out of 23 Ohio college winners . . . missed only on Xavier, beaten by St. Mary's Texas, 6-0 . . . "Ding" Olin's friends were on hand to see him hold down center for DePauw at Delaware Saturday . . . Plymouth and Shiloh have started six-man football . . . 500 black bass will be planted in Walton Lake.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

"Beany" Johnson quit Ashland college grid team to devote time to preparations for West Point exams . . . Walter Fensch's 612 led Shelley Chocolates to 2904 total in City pin league . . . Kenny Houston hurled D. & W. Wreckers to 11-1 win over Art Furnitures to cop City softball league title.

Heidelberg defeated Ashland 14 to 6, and the Heidelberg prexy said: "Thank God for Ashland" . . . Watch Heidelberg next year. Only four on the squad are seniors . . . Lima's Ohio State league Pandas used 99 dozen baseballs during the past season, an average of 18 a game . . . Lima played to 70,000 persons, Findley to 50,000 and Mansfield to [illegible] well we guess about 27,000 . . . Now they're talking about moving the pitching box back further in softball to give the batter a better break.

FIVE GAMES ON AIR

The networks will do five games on their second week-end of the football season on Saturday. The games, mainly intersectional, are divided: WABC-CBS, Cornell vs. Princeton; WJZ-NBC, Michigan vs. Iowa; WEAF-NBC, Notre Dame vs. Southern Methodist and MBS, Navy vs. Dartmouth, followed by Harvard vs. Chicago.

TURFMAN DIES

BALTIMORE—(AP)—Ral Parr, 62, widely-known turfman, died unexpectedly last night. Parr's black, white and red silks were up when Paul Jones won the Kentucky derby in 1920.

Tygers Polish Up Defense for Balconi, Mates

Hawkeyes Seen As Dangerous Big 10 Threat

Iowa Expected to Offer Wolves Tough Task Saturday; Illini Entrains.

By TOM SILER

CHICAGO —(AP)— Just how strong is Iowa? There are at least five Big Ten coaches who would like to know, but the conference schedule decrees that Fritz Crisler and his powerful Michigan eleven shall learn the answer first.

The Hawkeyes naturally are rated the underdog in their battle with Michigan Saturday, but a team that can score 73 points in its first two games and pull off many other surprises may not be through fooling the dopesters.

In pre-season discussions Iowa was considered as only a minor factor in the title race. One and all agreed it would take Dr. Eddie Anderson, the new coach, at least a couple of years to bring the Hawks out of the doldrums. But he has rebuilt Iowa's grid hopes at an amazing rate.

The football faithful at Ann Arbor Saturday will see in Nile Kinnick one of the country's outstanding backs who quite possibly might steal the spotlight from Tom Harmon and Forest Evashevski.

Coach Mal Elward told his Purdue squad yesterday that Minnesota's loss to Nebraska Saturday "makes our assignment against the Gophers this week tougher than ever." Bernie Bierman, drilling his men indoors because of rain, tried out several changes in the Minnesota team in preparation for the invasion of the Boilermakers.

Northwestern likewise stayed indoors looking at movies of their defeat by Oklahoma. Coach Lynn Waldorf said much time would be spent this week on blocking in preparation for the Wildcat's tussle with Ohio State. The Buckeyes spent two hours on aerial tactics, indicating Francis Schmidt's team may seek victory through the air.

Bo McMillin's Hoosiers went back to work yesterday on their pass defense, riddled by Iowa's brilliant attack last week. Wisconsin, Indiana's opponent Saturday, hopes to have its full strength back in the lineup for its first conference game. Big George Paskvan, fullback, removed the cast from an injured hand and may be ready for Saturday's battle.

Illinois' squad of 35 players entrained yesterday morning for Los Angeles where they play Southern California Saturday. The outfit will stop over in Tucson, Ariz., Wednesday and Thursday for workouts. Chicago has lost fullback Bob Howard for the Harvard game Saturday, the first string back receiving an injury in the Wabash game.

Challedon Sets New Track Record

LEXINGTON, Ky.—INS—Any doubt that W. L. Brann's Challedon is the year's three-year-old champion disappeared today following the bay's smashing of the world's record for a mile and three-sixteenths.

Challedon, in winning the $5,000 Tranter purse in the opening day feature at Keenland, was clocked in 1:54 3-5. The former mark of 1:55 was set in 1931 at Narragansett by Discovery.

The victory was Challedon's seventh of the year and boosted his total winnings to $236,010.

ROOM FOR FANS

Room for football fans wishing to accompany the Automotive Supplies to Cleveland for Sunday's game with the Euclid Spartans will be available in the players' bus. Manager Fred Rizzo announced today. Those wishing to make the trip are requested to contact Rizzo or any of the players. The bus will leave at 9:30 a. m.

Streak Classy Runner

Sandusky to Bring to City Grid Record Marred by Only One Defeat.

GENO BALCONI is no giant, but his deeds on the gridiron are of a major proportion.

Balconi is a member of the backfield of the crack Sandusky high school football team, and the Blue Streak mite is receiving considerable attention in drills at the Stadium field this week as the Tygers prepare for the annual tussle with the Lake City gridmen.

Mansfield has already been given two major headaches by Balconi, and there is no reason to suspect that the Sanduskian will be anything but a menace again Saturday when the Blue Streaks come to Stadium field.

If the Tygers can stop Balconi, which only one team has accomplished effectively this year, Coach Paul Snyder's baptism in the Mansfield-Sandusky rivalry may not be embarrassing.

Balconi is the sparkplug of a Sandusky team that is rated on a par with the 1938 aggregation, which trimmed the Tygers by a 49 to 0 score.

He can do anything asked of a halfback, but he is particularly impressive when he shoves the ball under his wing. Coach Bob Whittaker's ace proved this to the satisfaction of the Mansfield coaches on their scouting excursion to Sandusky last week when the Blue Streaks turned back Canton McKinley, 13 to 0.

What Snyder says was the greatest touchdown run he's witnessed this season was pulled by Balconi on his 42-yard trot through the entire Canton team last week.

But not all of the attention is being directed in Balconi's direction by Snyder and his Tygers this week. Sandusky is well blessed with experienced material, and, out side of one game, has produced the stellar type of football expected of it this season.

The only defeat was administered by Toledo Waite, which is again represented by one of the major touchdown machines this season.

The Tygers came out of the New Philadelphia fracas in fairly good shape, and not much time will be wasted this week in administering to injuries. This means that Snyder will have a full squad on hand the first time this season.

Rams Determined to Improve Record.

BOASTING of only one victory in four games, Coach Al Fendrick and his Madison high school Rams are out to improve their record.

Although all of the defeats came at the hands of Class A foes, Fendrick is not satisfied with the way his charges have been performing, but he has indicated that he sees brighter days ahead.

The Rams oppose an opponent from their own Class A division at Madison field Friday night when they engage Upper Sandusky, which, incidentally, has been faring rather well this season.

All of the schools remaining on the Madison schedule are of the Class B variety, but there are few easy assignments ahead.

Upper Sandusky, Norwalk St. Paul's, and Loudonville cannot be disregarded, but perhaps the major assignment ahead is Bellville. Bellville has not beaten Madison for many years, but the Blue Jays are in the thick of the fight for the state Class B title this season.

PARK THEATER TO SHOW LOUIS-PASTOR PICTURES

The Joe Louis-Bob Pastor heavyweight title fight pictures will be shown in conjunction with the regular features at the Park theater Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Ralph Scraffen, manager announced today.

LeMunyon, Weems Set Fast Scoring Pace

Roll Respective Totals of 666, 665 to Hold Stage at Meder Alleys.

HAROLD LEMUNYON and Jimmy Weems held the scoring stage pretty much to themselves at the Meder Recreation alleys last night.

Bowling in the Mixed Doubles league, LeMunyon compiled a nifty 666 to beat out Weems of the Mansfield Tire league by one pin for the night's scoring laurels.

LeMunyon put together scores of 240, 210 and 216 as he and his partner, Mary McMullen, who rolled a 513, came through with 1179 for the series. Margaret Baker of the same league upset 505 pins.

Weems, who bowls with the Curing Room No. 2 team, gathered up scores of 205, 214 and 246.

'Just Swingin' In the Slot, Says Keller

Young Yankee Only Fellow Not Particularly Impressed With Charley Keller.

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK — (AP) — About the only fellow who wasn't particularly impressed with Charley Keller's job of work in the world series was (you guessed it) Charley Keller.

"I guess I was just swingin' where they were pitchin'," insisted the short, hairy little fellow somewhat shyly. "Don't know any other reason why I got hot."

This was from the lad who merely collected seven hits in 16 times at bat for 19 bases and a .438 batting average in leading the Yankees to their four-straight walloping of the Cincinnati Reds.

* * *

He led the series in runs, runs batted in, hits and the size of his meals. This Killer Keller was the most amazing rookie in a series since Pepper Martin turned Connie Mack's hair white and gave Mickey Cochrane a nervous breakdown back in 1931.

KELLER

You asked him how he could hit a ball like he does, and he wasn't so sure about that either.

"I got good strong arms," he pointed out, rolling up his sleeve to show a forearm that resembles a good stout trunk of an oak tree. "How'd I get 'em? Why, milkin' cows when I was a kid I guess. From the time I was seven, my father used to have me milk the cows down on the farm near Middletown." (Middletown, Md., Pop. 900.)

He went to the University of Maryland and played a year of football there. During the summer he picked up some odd change playing semi-pro ball for a couple of years in North Carolina. That was four or five years ago he recalls.

That's where the Yanks heard about him, and sent a scout down to look him over. The scout wasn't particularly impressed at first, because of his lack of height. That, too, was the reason Clark Griffith of Washington turned him down. However, the Yankee scout came back for another look.

"Why," Keller explains, "he must have come back three, four times before he signed me up and sent me right to Newark. I played a year there, then went back to Maryland to finish my education.

* * *

"I have my degree now in economics and agriculture. The family is living in town (Frederick, Md.) but some day I want to get a farm and capitalize on my education."

Automotive Supplies Play on Road Sunday.

Victorious in three games, the Automotive Supplies will attempt to keep their record unmarked Sunday when they go to Cleveland to engage the Euclid Spartans. This will be the first road appearance for the Coach Earl McMullen's club this year. The Euclid eleven is compared on a par with the club which fought such thrilling battles with the old Crestline Merchants, and it should provide the Supplies with their toughest assignment of the season.

Bantams Play Initial Home Game Sunday

Richards' Charges to Meet South Akron Merchants at Blue Goose Field.

The Adams Bantams, Mansfield's lone representatives in the bantamweight field, will make their first home appearance of the season at Blue Goose field Sunday.

The Mansfield team will be opposed by the South Akron Merchants, with whom it broke even in a series of games last year.

Coach Hank Richards' club has lost two games this season, one to the Cleveland Skippies, defending Ohio champion and the other to Canton.

The bantams are working out nightly under the lights at Johns park.

Sophs, Marion Play to Tie

The Mansfield high sophomores and Marion reserves battled to a scoreless tie during the rain in Marion yesterday.

Bowman defeated Brinkerhoff, 12 to 0; Newman won over Prospect, 6 to 0, West Fifth and Carpenter battled to a scoreless tie in Grade School tap football league games yesterday.

Thomas scored both touchdowns in the Bowman victory, and Grassell tallied for Newman. The game scheduled between Hedges and Bushnell was called on account of rain.

THREE BUCKS MARRIED

The 1939 Ohio State football roster embraces the names of three players who are married. They are John Rabb, fullback; Claude White, center, and Tommy Welbaum, fullback. All are lettermen.

South Headed Higher

Southern Elevens Expected to Enhance Prestige Through Intersectional Tilts.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Looking at things entirely from the intersectional angle, this is likely to be about the biggest week of the 1939 football season and another one which will enhance the prestige of southern football.

On a percentage basis southern teams are still below the .500 mark in their major encounters with northern rivals, but in the matter of glory they're tops and apparently headed still higher.

The East figures to get off to a head start this week when Boston college, apparently powerful though still untried, faces twice-beaten Florida on Thursday.

North Carolina, with a wealth of fine backs including those "touchdown twins," George Stirnweiss and Jim Lalanne, figures to have the best of New York university. Fordham doesn't appear strong enough to stop Tulane at New Orleans. So far, the Rams have been a one-track team without the line to make their power plays effective.

Duke, invading the North, should be able to tackle Pitt's Panthers at least on even terms although the game should differ vastly from last year's test of sheer power. Georgia, off its loss to Furman, isn't quite good enough to handle Holy Cross unless all those injury stories from Worcester are true.

Bringing the Southwest into the argument, Rice and Louisiana State should have a whale of a tussle and Texas A. and M., apparently the strongest of the Southwest conference teams, may get a real argument from Villanova's powerful outfit. Southern Methodist, which hasn't shown a great deal yet, is a good possibility to upset Notre Dame, which has had two close squeaks so far, Texas Christian, dethroned champions, likely will find a long trip and a fairly good Temple team too much to overcome.

Another great tussle may be that between Texas, winner of two important intersectional games so far, and Oklahoma, which tied S. M. U. and trimmed Northwestern. Their conference schedules put them in different sections though they're not so far apart.

The Midwest figures to break about even with Carnegie Tech, possibly the East's best team, rated well ahead of Case and Harvard over Chicago

Lyons Hurls White Sox To Fifth Straight Title.

CHICAGO — (AP) — After 17 years, the Chicago White Sox still find Teddy Lyons, the 38-year-old righthander, a handy man to have around.

Lyons, smart and steady as ever, pitched the Sox to the city baseball championship last night, setting the National League Cubs down with five hits for a 7 to 1 victory in the seventh game of the series. The victory, Lyons' second of the series, gave the Sox their fifth straight city diadem.

THEATERS

THE film version of "My Son, My Son" will be disappointing to many readers of the novel because the title role is taken by Louis Hayward, who is not too well known and who doesn't seem to fit the role. He just isn't the "beautiful" blond, spoiled brat whose too-indulgent father contributed to the boy's dark destiny. If the story were filmed properly it could be one of the greatest of all pictures because there hasn't been so tragic and heart-clutching a story since Dreiser's "American Tragedy." The picture won't dwell on the war scenes, but will show only the boy leaving for the war and returning.

Old Theme Done Over.

The old theme of two service men fighting over the same girl is carried out in "Coast Guard," the Ohio theater attraction, with Ralph Bellamy as a dependable lieutenant in the service, and Randolph Scott as a reckless aviator in the same branch of federal service. They were the best of friends until petite Frances Dee happens along and marries one of them. The climax comes when both are lost in the frozen North and work out their problems there. Walter Connolly is seen as the skipper of a small craft and Miss Dee's grandfather.

Historical Episode.

Making no attempt to pattern its actions and thrills on "Mutiny On The Bounty," a new sea drama with historical aspects is depicted in "Mutiny On The Black Hawk," one of the Madison attractions. It takes a spectacular incident in California history when a munity was staged aboard a slave ship just off the coast. It shows California coming into the Union. Richard Arlin and Constance Moore are the romantic figures. Also shown is "Here I Am A Stranger" with Richard Greene, Richard Dix, Gladys George and Brenda Joyce.

Louis-Pastor Fight Film.

Besides its regular bill of two features and a news reel the Park will show the Joe Louis-Bob Pastor fight pictures, the last half of the week, starting tomorrow. The main feature is Lee Tracy in "The Spellbinder," the story of an attorney who has the power to sway juries with his personal appeal and oratory. In the cast are Barbara Reed, Allan Lane, Linda Hayes and Patric Knowles. In the second feature, "Hearts In Bondage," are James Dunn and Mae Clark.

"Undercover Doctor."

A figure that has given G-Men considerable worry in the past few years is the unethical physician and surgeon who gives underhanded aid to criminals. This theme is used in "Undercover Doctor," a Ritz attraction for today and tomorrow. Lloyd Nolan is seen as the G-Man and J. Carrol Naish as the doctor. Broderick Crawford, who has been busy in Hollywood since he gave up the stage, also has a role in the film. Of paramount importance on the Ritz bill, however, is "Juarez" with Bette Davis and Paul Muni, depicting a dramatic chapter in Mexican history.

Two Comedies.

Two kinds of comedy will be found on the Majestic menu, both of them worked out by star casts. "Idiot's Delight," although primarily with a serious subject — how war lords make a war—is done wit ha covering of light, romantic comedy. Clark Gable and Norma Shearer depart from their usual types to play, respectively, a song and dance man, and a phony countess. The second comedy is all-American and tells of the misadventures of "The Kid From Texas." Dennis O'Keefe and Florence Rice head the cast.

No Longer Dreads Suffering That Followed Every Meal

Mansfield resident tells how Vendol relieved gas, acid risings, heartburn, cramps, and other upset stomach conditions that were due to constipation.

MR. BENJAMIN L. FEEMAN

Welcome relief is promised those who suffer from constipation, and many of the distressing symptoms when associated with or due to this trouble, such as gas, sour stomach, acid risings, cramps, choking feelings, and many others if they will try Vendol, the Root, Herb, and Alkaline medicine now being so successfully introduced by the Vendol Man at Central Drug Store. Many local people tell what Vendol has done for them. For instance,

Mr. Benjamin L. Feeman of 148 Miller St., Mansfield says: "I was constipated so badly every day that I dreaded for mealtime to come because of the suffering that always followed. I couldn't eat a thing without having gas, sour stomach, belching, shortness of breath, and palpitation. It often felt as though there were a lump in my throat which I could neither swallow nor throw out.

"Besides this, the constipation often made me feel dizzy, spots danced before my eyes, my head ached, tongue was coated, and I had a vile taste in my mouth; then too, my sleep was light and broken.

"I have taken one bottle of Vendol and some of the little Vendol laxative tablets and this treatment has given the grandest relief from constipation I ever had, and now all my other troubles are only a memory. I think Vendol about the finest medicine I ever tried and advise everyone to get some without delay."

It is proven every day right here in Mansfield that Vendol gives astonishing relief from sour, acid, gassy stomach upsets; biliousness, dizzy spells, spots before the eyes, pains in back and legs, and other symptoms if due to or associated with constipation. So, if you suffer this way, come to the Central Drug Store, Corner Main and Fourth Streets, and let the Vendol Man tell you all about this quick-acting Root, Herb, and Alkaline medicine. All druggists sell Vendol.

A Japanese newspaper claims that the United States started and is responsible for the war in Europe. And yet there are some folks who insist the Japs do not have a sense of humor!

It is estimated that more than a half-billion dollars has been spent in laying out the golf courses now existing in the United States. However, some of the players who appear on them still look like 30 cents.

There are 527 muscles in the human body, according to a medical book we've just read. And every one of Junior's aches when someone asks him to help dry the dishes.

It begins to look as though the only thing any of those European belligerents will gain out of this war is more of what they already have too many of—historic battlefields.

TRADERS AWAIT FURTHER MOVES IN WAR TANGLE

Divided as to Possible Results of 'Peace Offensive'; List Up Fractions.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Stock market prices edged a little ahead today but the improvement was measured largely in fractions.

Up most of the time were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, U. S. Rubber, American Telephone, Western Union, Phelps Dodge, Westinghouse Electric, General Electric, Du Pont, Johns-Manville and Eastman Kodak.

Brokers said traders were divided as to the possible results of the German "peace offensive," although they agreed Premier Daladier of France yesterday had seemed to close the door to concord on Herr Hitler's terms. The possibility of further moves which might lead to a bargain was considered by many.

Analysts noted the "Iron Age" statement that steel operations this week had advanced to 90 per cent of capacity and that some plants and even some entire districts were on a 100 per cent of capacity basis.

"Tin plate mills are estimated to be operating at 93 per cent," the publication continued, "and some cold reduction uints are running at rates above their theoretical capacity to meet the heaviest tin plate demand the trade has ever experienced at this time of year."

Electric power output for the week ended Oct. 7 dropped a little from the record total of the preceding period but was still 14.4 per cent ahead of the 1938 comparative, the Edison Electric institute reported.

PERSONAL TAX PROBE ORDERED

Court Instructs Auditor to Assess Property of Black Estate for Taxation.

a suit brought against the county auditor and treasurer by Michael Hallabrin, Mansfield, as a taxpayer. The appeals court yesterday dismissed Treasurer John E. Kolb as a defendant in the case on the grounds that assessing the properties is the auditor's duty.

Evidence introduced yesterday by counsel for Hallabrin was taken from the Black estate records which the appeals had ordered turned over to Hallabrin. The records were involved in a contempt charge filed three weeks ago against Robert B. Black, son of the late Mr. Black who refused to submit the records to Hallabrin's counsel during the taking of depositions.

Wolfe said he would start next week to check properties against the personal taxes paid during the period involved in the action.

Prosecutor G. W. Marriott represented the auditor and treasurer at yesterday's hearing. Hallabrin's attorneys are Joseph A. Bayer of Mansfield, C. N. Hostetter of Massillon and Hart, McHenry and Jones of Canton.

Stalin Executed 35,000 Army Leaders, Ex-Red Says

MILLIONS PUT INTO CAMPS, WITNESS SAYS

Krivitsky Tells Dies Probers How He Broke With Reds Because of Purge.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Walter G. Krivitsky, who said he formerly headed the Soviet union's central European military intelligence service, told the Dies committee today that Josef Stalin "destroyed" 35,000 red army officers in 1937 and sent "millions" of the Russian population to concentration camps.

Krivitsky said he "broke" with the Russian government in December, 1937, because he was unwilling to join in Stalin's purge of "all the elements which would have been the basis for the democratization of the country."

Stalin tightened his dictatorship, Krivitsky said, at the very time that "all of us" were looking forward to "more freedom."

Krivitsky has attracted considerable attention in this country, to which he came as a visitor, on the basis of magazine articles purporting to tell the "inside" of the Soviet purge, Russian activities in the Spanish war, and relations between Stalin and Hitler.

Chairman Martin Dies, D., Tex., said before the hearing began that he was the best witness the committee yet had obtained.

On this first public appearance in this country he was accompanied by Boris Shub, who acted as interpreter.

In addition to "destroying 35,000 members of the officers' corps of the red army," Krivitsky said Stalin sent "300,000 to 400,000" members of the party into exile and sent "millions from the population" to concentration camps.

"Since Lenin's death, Stalin has been fighting every form of opposition in the country in laying the ground work for his totalitarian dictatorship," he said.

He said that his campaign of Stalin's "reached its climax" in 1936 and 1937. No one, he said, could remain in the party and not take active part in the purge.

Krivitsky said that he was born on June 28, 1899, in the western Ukraine which was a part of Poland until last month's German-Russian partition. His birthplace, he said, now is part of Russia. His name was Samuel Ginsberg until 1919 when he took the "official legal Soviet name" of Walter Krivitsky.

HUNT RENEWED

Officers Get New Reports on Child Molester From Girl.

Authorities renewed their search today for a child-molester after a 13-year-old schoolgirl told Sheriff E. P. Long that a "dark-haired man in a black coupe" tried to entice her into his car late yesterday north of the city.

The girl, a pupil in the Terman rural school north of the city, said she was walking home from school along the Bowman street road when the man, described as about 25 years old, stopped her. She refused to get in the car and ran home to tell her parents.

The girl obtained a part of the license number on the car, providing the only tangible clue authorities have had since they began a search for the man who has attempted to molest nine small girls in the last four months.

Ashland Council OK's Purchase of Fire Equipment

ASHLAND — The dream that Fire Chief Charles Clark has had for years was one step nearer realization here today after city council agreed to purchase a junior aerial fire fighting outfit which would be equipped with 65-foot ladders.

For years Clark has carried on a continuous campaign to have better equipment for the fire department. His chief complaint has been that the present equipment in use is antiquated, and that only real luck has prevented any serious and high losses.

The outfit, which council agreed to purchase will cost about $15,000. But, one councilman declared, the new equipment must be met by improvement in the personnel of firemen.

Ashland at present has a volunteer fire department, and four drivers. Only the drivers are paid for full time services. Others are paid for each fire call answered.

100 PER CENT DROP SHOWN IN CONTAGION HERE

774 Cases Reported This Year as Compared With 1,665 in Same Period in 1938.

Communicable diseases in Mansfield during the past nine months have shown more than a 100 percent decrease from the number of cases reported for the same period last year, Dr. Roy C. Rehder, city-county health commissioner told the board of health last night.

The number of cases of contagious disease reported to the health department during the first nine months of this year totaled 774 as compared with 1,655 for the corresponding period in 1938, Dr. Rehder said.

He explained that the decrease was due chiefly to a drop in the number of cases of measles with only 156 cases reported so far this year as against 1,259 during the first nine months of 1938.

'Child Diseases' Higher.

It was pointed out however that an increase was shown in several "child diseases."

These he said were chickenpox which jumped from 83 last year to 212 so far this year; mumps which increased from 42 cases during the first nine months of 1938 to 251 this year, and whooping cough which rose from 39 cases last year to 56 so far this year.

Dr Rehder said that as the result of the decrease in contagion classroom inspections of school children by department nurses had dropped to one half the number made last year.

He reported that 4,830 inspections had been made so far this year as against 8,450 during the same period last year.

Says U. S. Should Be Educated to Evils of 'Isms'

Only by educating Americans to the benefits of a democracy and the evils of the threatening "isms" can we retain our democratic government, President E. G. Mason of Ashland college told Mansfield Rotarians yesterday.

Mason spoke at the club's luncheon meeting at the Mansfield-Leland hotel on a program set up by W. L. Miller, superintendent of Mansfield schools.

"Forget the minor defects of a democracy and let's talk about its privileges and the defects of the "isms," Mason advised. The preservation of our democracy will consist of the continuation of the rights of life and unrestrained liberty as we have always known them," he said.

Miss Virginia Fairman and Henry Sanford, Senior high school students, spoke in behalf of the three-mill school levy which will be voted on in November.

CLAIMS 500,000 IN STALIN PURGE

Dies Probe Witness Says Millions Were Sent to 'Camps.'

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Josef Stalin, dictator of Soviet Russia, "purged" or imprisoned approximately 500,000 Communists and Red army officers in 1935 and 1936, Gen. W. G. Krivitsky, former head of the Soviet military intelligence in western Europe, told the Dies committee today.

That was the reason, Gen. Krivitsky said, that he broke with the Stalin government.

In addition to "purging" and imprisoning the half-million, Stalin also banished "millions" to concentration camps, according to the witness.

TELLS OF LEGION'S 'PEACETIME JOB' AS CLUB HONORS GARDNER

"Legion[illegible] a more difficult problem [illegible] than they did in war [illegible] to succeed in [illegible] American freedom," Paul Gnau, department treasurer of the American Legion, said in an address to the Optimist club today at a luncheon in honor of R. B. Gardner of Mansfield, new commander of the Legion in Ohio.

Meeting in the Mansfield-Leland hotel, the Optimists celebrated "Legion day" with Gardner as the guest of honor. Gnau described him as ideally suited for the job of running the Ohio department which he called "a big business."

Duty of all Legionnaires, Gnau said, is to make sure American ideals of freedom are not lost. While the job is not as glamorous as war, it is fully as important, he declared.

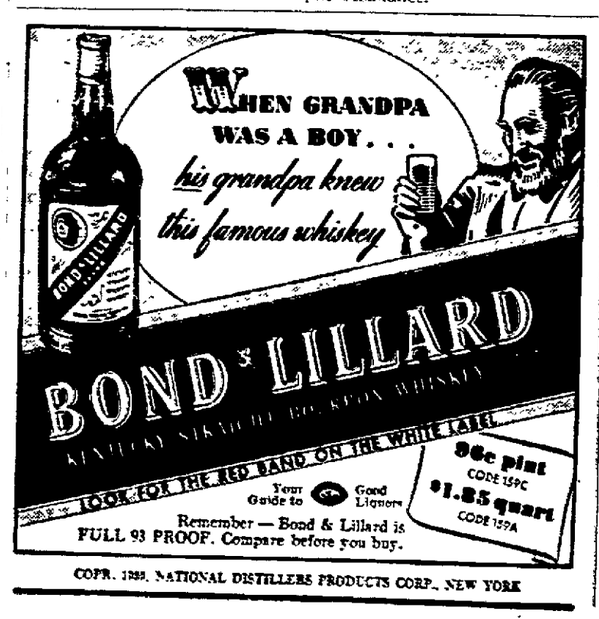

He termed Gardner capable of carrying the Legion's message to every corner of the state, making everyone realize the benefits of American government."

Atty. Lewis Brucker, chairman at today's session, said Gardner deserved his fellow citizens' respect for attaining the highest office the Ohio department of the Legion can confer.

Gardner who answered briefly said he appreciated the honor paid him in his unanimous election to the office and declared he "would never knowingly do anything which would bring discredit to the Legion."

Members of the Mansfield McVey post were guests of the club.

FINNS GIRD TO FIGHT RUSSIA

modern submarines, 25 mine sweepers and mine layers, seven motor torpedo boats of which four were good for 40 knots, 16 25-knot patrol boats and four small gunboats.

Foreign diplomatic quarters saw little hope either of successful resistance to Russian demands or of foreign aid for Finland. Sweden, Finland's neighbor on the west, though equally interested in the Aaland Islands which lie in the mouth of the Bothnian gulf between them, showed no sign of interest in halting the Russian Baltic thrust.

Finlanders, however, argued:

1—An attack on Finland would be an attack on the Scandinavian nations who wish only to be left alone—Finland, Sweden, Norway and Denmark—with whom are aligned in the "Oslo" group, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg.

2—Sweden has vital interests in this situation, because of the nearness of the Aaland Islands to its coast.

3—The friendship of the United States, at least, might be counted on because of Finland's faithful payment of its war debt obligations.

It was understood that the Finnish government did not even know the demands which Russia intended to make. Official spokesmen told the United Press that the government was quite prepared to discuss political and economic relations cordially but Finland's demand that its independent political and national existence be left intact was unconditional.

A United Press Copenhagen dispatch quoted reports that Russia intended to demand naval bases and air force bases in the Aaland Islands, among other things

Soviet, Lithuania Conclude Pact.

MOSCOW—(ANS)—Conclusion of a Russo-Lithuanian mutual assistance pact was announced today as Soviet leaders turned their attention to Finland as the next field for expanding Russian influence.

The pact signed by Russia and Lithuania amounts to a military alliance under which the Soviets are granted the right to keep army and air force units in Lithuanian territory.

In exchange, Lithuania regains its ancient capital, Vilna, which was seized by Poland in 1921 and which was occupied by Soviet troops following the German invasion of Poland.

Military observers in Moscow believed the pact would be followed by fortification of the Lithuanian-German frontier.

Although the Lithuanian pact was regarded as vitally important in the Soviet bid for domination of the Baltic region, interest remained centered on the negotiations with Finland, which are opening today in a tense atmosphere.

The chief Finnish negotiator, Dr. Juho Paasakivi, and his aids were scheduled to launch the negotiations with Premier-Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov before night. Paasakivi is regarded as one of the greatest authorities on Russo-Finnish affairs.

There was no comment in Moscow on reports of drastic Finnish military precautions — in fact, there was no outward indication that these precautions even interested the Soviet government had suffered his wound he apparently had attempted to crawl to the davenport, but had failed to reach it.

Neither was there any official indication of the demands Russia will make upon Finland. There were unofficial predictions, however, that these will involve Finland's Aland islands, Lavansaris, Hango and alterations in the Soviet-Finnish frontier.

Marshal Conrad said there were "suspicious circumstances" surrounding the case and that they were being investigated.

At his office, it was reported that he had left for Cleveland to attend a medical meeting and would return tomorrow on Friday Tentative plans have been made for Sprang's funeral tomorrow.

DEATH RAY WAS ONCE A SUCCESS

Clevelander Destroyed Device Which Killed Rats, Dog and Would Stop Planes.

Dr Longoria said he was interested now in doing something to help civilization and that he had no drawings of the "death ray."

"The plans are in my head alone," he said. "I could assemble such a machine again, but I never will. My inventions have brought me wealth and I am interested now only in doing something for civilization, which seems to be going backward instead of ahead."

Dr. Longoria revealed that he first demonstrated his ray, which he perfected in 1923, while working in California on a colored motion picture process. He said he showed a group of scientists that the ray could kill rabbits even when the animals were encased in a thick-walled aluminum case

"The ray lies in one of the unexplored frequency bands in the vicinity of the X-ray," the scientist added. "It kills painlessly, without burning, by changing the blood to a useless substance as light changes silver salts in photography.

"But I don't like to talk about it, because it could wreck civilization. I'll have nothing to do with it. My hands will be clean."

SUPPORT SOUGHT

Referendum Backers Need 12,000 Signatures.

COLUMBUS —(UP)— Approximately 12,000 additional signatures are necessary in the next 10 days to put the civil service referendum on the November ballot, it was estimated today when final checks of the original petitions were completed by county election boards

County boards reported that 120,196 of the 144,773 original signatures were valid. Besides that, the committee had filed 14,823 supplemental signatures which are now being checked.

If the same ratio of validity holds, backers will have to get around 12,000 more to put the proposition on the ballot. It requires 144,773 signatures to qualify.

IROQUOIS NEARS U. S. PORT TODAY

American Liner Still Sailing Despite Nazi 'Warning.'

NEW YORK—(ANS)—Her radio silent and her position known only to the U. S. navy, the American liner Iroquois, with 584 war refugees, was scheduled to arrive in New York today accompanied by four destroyers and a coastguard cutter.

Secrecy cloaking the position and arrival time of the liner resulted from the sensational warning last week by Grand Admiral Raeder of the German navy to the White House that the Iroquis would be torpedoed under circumstances similar to the sinking of the British ship Athenia.

posals apparently was causing concern. One editor wrote that "four days ought to be enough" for some sign of "appreciation for Hitler's efforts to establish a lasting peace."

Chamberlain Maps Britain's Answer.

LONDON —(U.P.)— Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain was said in usually reliable sources today to be prepared to reject Adolf Hitler's peace terms but willing to leave the door wide open for a more acceptable offer from Germany.

The prime minister, who addresses the house of commons tomorrow, is expected to refrain from presenting any allied counter-proposals.

In line with the speech by French Premier Edouard Daladier yesterday refusing Hitler's terms, Chamberlain will place responsibility on the Nazi fuehrer for tendering reasonable proposals or facing the consequences, it was understood.

The government, which today welcomed Polish foreign minister August Zaleski to London to confer on war aims and on formation of a Polish fighting legion, was believed to have decided to delay any complete statement on the allied war aims

Last week it had been indicated that the allies would soon announce a detailed statement of their war aims, said to have been tentatively drafted. But consultations with the French appeared to indicate that the Paris government considers the moment inopportune. Chamberlain presumably has deferred to the French viewpoint.

Reger was arrested by police yesterday and accused of attempting to enter the home of Earl R. Secrist, 1 Auburn avenue. They said the youth attempted to enter the house through a window but was scared away by Mrs. Secrest.

Picked up a few minutes after she called police, Reger who said he was soliciting for household products, was identified by Mrs. Secrest.

N. Y. Mayor Names Gehrig to $6,000 Parole Position

NEW YORK — (AP) — Mayor LaGuardia today appointed Lou Gehrig, former New York Yankee star first baseman incapacitated by a subtle form of paralysis, a city parole commissioner.

The appointment, for a term of slightly more than 10 years, carries a salary of $6,000, less a current 5 per cent pay cut.

The commission is a five-man board headed by the police and correction commissioners, ex officio, with three members appointed by the mayor.

"The matter has been under advisement for over four months," the mayor said in making the announcement at the summer city hall in Queens.

"I believe he will not only be an able, intelligent commissioner, but that he himself will be an inspiration and a hope to many of the younger boys who have gotten into trouble."

FINED $100 ON TRAFFIC CHARGE

SHELBY—Charged with driving an automobile while intoxicated, O. C. Markey, R. D. 3, Shelby, was found guilty in Mayor D. B. Young's court and fined $100 and costs Wednesday. Markey was arrested by Patrolman Walter Benedict, west of Shelby, after he had driven through a red traffic signal in this city and struck a rural mail box. Markey pleaded not guilty in court.

Electric Rates In Mansfield Are The Lowest In History

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1939.

The worst thing about radio is that it uses up the good jokes so fast.

It's probably true, as Von Ribbentrop says, that "Germany has always wanted peace." But Hitler hasn't.

The American republics have two purposes: To keep out of the war in Europe and to keep that war out of this hemisphere.

Lost by Default

SO FOR LACK of $50,000, the whole $600,000 improvement was lost.

That seems to be the story of the state's effort to eliminate the B. and O. and Erie crossings on Route 30N, west of Mansfield.

Asked to give their final decision no later than yesterday on whether they would agree to contribute $50,000 toward the proposal over a two-year period, the commissioners enjoy their regular weekly "day off" without even deigning to make a reply to Murray D. Shaffer, state highway division engineer.

So, for the present at least, the work won't be done.

Motorists on Route 30N will continue to cross the B. and O. tracks at the bottom of a hill, where vision either way and from either side is obscured. They will continue to cross the Erie tracks at the top of a grade, where they can see a fair distance either way along the tracks, but can't see approaching traffic on the narrow road across the tracks.

It isn't a very safe condition, but no one has been killed at either crossing for some time.

And since the county won't be spending $50,000 in the next two years on that particular piece of work, on which the state, the city and the railroads would have spent $550,000, the last dollar of bonded debt will shortly be retired, and Richland county will be probably the only county in Ohio with no bonded debt.

Thrift is entirely admirable.

One wonders, however, whether refusal to spend $50,000 over the next two years in eliminating a known traffic hazard is actually thrift.

Certainly no one would accuse county commissioners of being profligate with the taxpayers' money if they had decided in the present circumstances that the county's financial structure could withstand the addition of $50,000 of debt.

Without giving another thought to the fact that a county office-holder can right easily make re-election campaign fodder out of the claim "we operated so economically that we haven't any debt," we think the county commissioners have attached undue emphasis on the necessity for wiping the slate entirely clean of obligations.

It is an unhealthy situation when debt retirement consumes so much of the tax dollar that the regular operations are handicapped. But that is not the case in this county.

And what shall the attitude be when the slate finally is wiped clean?

Will it then be said, when a proposal for a needed improvement is made, "No, we can't consider that. We would have to go into debt"?

A Steel-Walled Hemisphere

THE tragic situation of Europe has at least this redeeming effect, so far as we Americans are concerned—that it drives us together, gives us unity, consolidates the United States and the other American republics.

This spirit is seen in our own country, welding our various racial and social groups together more firmly than they were at the beginning of the last big war It is seen throughout the western hemisphere, through the eyes and acts of the Inter-American Neutrality conference at Panama.

That conference goes much farther than any previous meeting of the kind has gone, to recognize how the destiny of these 21 republics is bound up together and to improve our means of cooperation. There is no more question about our natural separateness from the endless war and strife of the Old World. The only question is how to make it more secure. We do not want to cut our friendly and useful ties with the Old World, but we want to strengthen our fences and provide better locks for our gates and doors and a more united front against foreign aggression. And as a means of "implementing" this defensive policy, we want our 21 republics to live and work together in a closer social and economic unity.

The other Americas, fortunately, now understand that in all this, we North Americans seek only a partnership of free and equal neighbors, not domination of them and their affairs.

More Building

IT SEEMS CLEAR," says the head of a large building concern, "that this autumn will probably afford the last opportunity for several years to build on the present moderate scale of costs, and those who act promptly will benefit by their foresight."

It would be a mistake to take this as a mere business-boosting statement. Many things point toward higher building costs, especially the European war with its unpredictable scope and duration. It seems now that, in one way and another, that was is sure to have a generally stimulating effect on American business.

The business man quoted believes things are moving fast, that our country has already entered an economic phase which came much later in the last war. He foresees business stimulus, re-employed labor and rising incomes and purchasing power which will make rents higher and homes more in demand.

The logical result of such a situation, he thinks, will be a hurry to build which will make it hard to keep costs at a reasonable level.

Freedom Gets a Bath

IT IS REASSURING to learn that the Armed Goddess of Freedom, who has stood on top of the capitol dome at Washington in all weathers and administrations for 75 years, has been cleaned up. She could not come down for the job, because the lady weighs 19,000 pounds. The workmen climbed up and washed her face with a chemical preparation, and slicked up her clothing until he looked more presentable.

The hardest thing was cleaning her ears. Any mother will realize how that it, although the difficulty is usually greatest with males.

It wasn't oratory that clogged those gilded ears either. It was birds' nests.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—This is no secret; it has been printed, and people are supposed to know things that have been told. But I didn't know it, and I will admit that it sort of startled me, and caused me to turn and gaze with interest at the apartment building at No. 1331 Madison avenue, which is at the corner of Ninety-fourth street. I gazed at it a long time, and even now I could tell you how many windows are in the face of that building, and perhaps the color of the curtains in some of the windows.

The first Mrs. Ernest Simpson lives there, in a three-room apartment. It was her husband who married Wallis Warfield, of Baltimore, who in time became the woman for whom Edward VIII renounced his throne.

They say Mr. Simpson first met Wallis in this apartment, where Mrs. Simpson had invited her to dinner. I wouldn't know. In any case, the former Mrs. Simpson still lives there, and she is a busy and a successful business woman. She is, in a sense, an arranger. She will arrange a wedding for you. Or a six-month cruise to the south seas. She is an interior decorator. If you want to know what kind of flowers are appropriate for special occasions, she will tell you.

People who know her (I have never seen her) say she is a striking handsome woman. Her hair is prematurely white. She has grey eyes, and her voice is soft and warm. The floors of her apartment have Persian rugs which are grey and rose. The walls are white, the furniture old French. This apartment is her home and her office, and also her castle.

Side notes: Millions of pounds of fish are handled by the New York markets a year. . . . You can always find at least a hundred varieties at the Fulton Street fish market, where Al Smith got his start in life. If you can stand the odor, it's an interesting place to visit. Early morning hours are best, say from 5 to 8 a. m The sidewalks are wet and slippery from fish, and the bins are laden with a slimy, silvery cargo.

Manhattan is noted for its great hotels, but it has none comparable in size to the St. George in Brooklyn. The St. George is the second largest in the world—second only to the Stevens in Chicago.

What makes the St. George a delight in summer is that it has the only natural salt-water swimming pool, for an "island" hotel, in the world. Engineers discovered this quite by accident while drilling for a fresh water well. The water is only about half as salty as sea water, and comes in at a temperature of 41 degrees.

I am told that New York has more than 1,200 nightclubs. I have been in perhaps 75. I couldn't name more than 25 if I were going to be shot. There could be twenty, or twenty thousand, and only a few names would stand out. Most nightclub owners who are successful are graduates from the speakeasy era. They came up from the hard-bitten school of prohibition, and have prospered. Sherman Billingsley, a former Oklahoma drug store man, and John Perona, a swarthy-browed Italian, are outstanding proprietors in this field. Both rose from nothing to affluence by catering to the right sort of people. Billingsley today owns the world famous Stork club; Perona the El Morocco.

EVOLUTION OF THE EUROPEAN "POWDER KEG"!

War (Department) Front Quiet

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — We have just come back from the front at the war department and can give an eyewitness report that Assistant Secretary Louis Johnson is still there and so is Secretary Harry H. Woodring, in spite of strictly unofficial shelling that has continued for two years or more.

Mr. Woodring

It has been no secret for months that these two major figures in the war department have been at loggerheads.

Fundamentally, the trouble is this:

Woodring is no dynamo. He probably will not go down in history as one of the GREAT secretaries of war. Yet he was once governor of Kansas and has certain established qualities as an executive.

Johnson IS a dynamo. He is a giant in size and his dominating personality has kept Woodring in an almost complete "blackout." By law he is the man in the department who deals with the industrial preparation for the big war the army must always be ready for. This has given him even more of an edge on Woodring.

Airplane Affair.

FURTHER, Johnson championed a whopping air force. He talked of an air expansion of four, five or six times. He got the ear of the president last year on the heels of Europe's Munich. Such a program represented not a mere purchase order but a matter of army policy where the secretary himself could have expected to have been the big gun. But the president dealt directly with Johnson.

Then began the flood of rumors. Mainly they centered on the theme that Woodring was going to be eased out into an ambassadorship.

Where did such stories originate? With Johnson, said rumor mongers. We checked into that. It doesn't hold water. Possibly more substance can be found in reports that certain New Dealers hoped to smother Woodring out and ease Attorney General Murphy into the job so New Dealist Robert Jackson could at last achieve the attorney generalship. Things like that can't be proved or disproved.

Ultimately the fat fried out of the airplane affair. Certain army generals got behind Woodring in a protest at such preponderance of air power, in the belief it would starve other branches of the army. The heavyweight air program was trimmed to middleweight proportions.

That 'Permanent' Board.

THERE was more. While Woodring was inspecting the Panama Canal, Johnson and Acting Secretary of the Navy Edison blossomed out with an imposing War Resources board. It was to be a permanent board. It was headed by young Edward Stettinius, chairman of Morgan-controlled United States Steel. It became the president's pet and Johnson's pride. Woodring again went into the "blackout."

But there was public and New Deal reaction against the administration taking so much of "big business" into its lap as was represented on the War Resources board. Its ramifications reached into the neutrality fight in congress. Abruptly the president announced the "permanent" board was not permanent. He accepted its report and ordered it dismissed.

Mr. Johnson

There are political reasons suggesting it may ride on peaceably until Roosevelt's administration ends. Woodring's influence in Kansas and elsewhere is important. Johnson, an ex-commander of the American Legion, is likewise important from the veterans' angle.

And just now President Roosevelt seems not likely to disturb the trend toward party harmony unless a situation grows out of the war such as would lead him to compel harmony in the war department.

Listen, World!

Has the Mrs. a Right to a Job?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SHOULD any married woman, whose husband earns $800 per year or more, be refused a job . . . dismissed if she has one? . . .

Should all married women be denied the right to take civil service examinations?

Should all female workers, married or single, be eventually ousted from positions which unemployed men might fill?

Cockeyed theories? Not in the least. These are actual propositions, all part of a nation-wide campaign, designed to raise Cain with the Mrs. pay check. Interested. Then you should have read a recent issue of a popular magazine in which was Clara Belle Thompson's and Margaret Lukes Wise's amazing article, "SHALL WE FIRE THE MARRIED WOMEN?"

Maybe you've thought that this agitation against the married-woman worker was exclusively masculine. Guess again! Women, themselves, are taking up the fight against their laboring sisters. In the national congress, in every State legislature, a furious effort is under way to force women into the industrial position their great-grandmothers occupied. Here are quotes from the Misses Thompson and Wise which should give this supposed democracy a considerable pause:

"At this very minute, in 40 states, women cannot teach school if they are married. Bills to prohibit or restrict the right of married women to be employed have been introduced in 15 state legislatures: California, Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Utah, Washington and Wisconsin."

Well, what of it? many will ask. Suppose such laws do throw women out of work. If they just men in their place, everything'll be jake. It's those working women that are responsible for depression, they're keeping the men out of jobs."

BUT ARE THEY? AND WOULD "EVERYTHING BE JAKE" IF WE TOOK THE MRS. OFF THE PAYROLL?

"They are not and it wouldn't!" cry Thompson & Wise, Inc.

Of the 11,000,000 women in the U. S. A. who are now gainfully employed, 3,000,000 are married. Let's fire the 3,000,000 and see if we have 3,000,000 jobs for unemployed men. The plain fact is—The jobs don't swap! Over a million of the married women are engaged in domestic or personal service. Would firing half a million cooks (beauticians, dressmakers, nursemaids, etc.) help half a million stevedores?"

Step by step, statistics show that firing our women workers would be no panacea for our national ills. To the contrary, such a step would enormously increase them. Millions of newlyweds could not have married unless the bride kept her position. Millions more (49% of all working women) have helpless dependents whom they cannot expect their husbands to support—feeble old mothers and fathers, kid sisters and brothers going through school. HELPLESS ONES WHO WILL BE THROWN ON THE RELIEF ROLL IF THE WIFE IS DEPRIVED OF HER JOB.

These are arguments based on necessity. But there is a deeper and more sacred need than that of the flesh. America is theoretically a democracy. A democracy does not discriminate between its workers . . . does not openly endorse "privileged" and "unprivileged" classes. Yet it does exactly that when it refuses the married woman a job! So what?

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The house liberal bloc had no success in persuading Roosevelt to back their anti-profiteering rider to the neutrality bill. But they did come away from the White House with one thing—an inside glimpse of a great fear that is haunting the president. It is the fear that his New Deal reforms will be nullified by war.

Roosevelt listened quietly to the arguments of the liberals that anti-profiteering legislation was needed immediately. But when they finished, he at once made it clear that he did not intend to permit anything to interfere with the earliest possible repeal of the arms embargo. The nation was faced with an "extreme emergency," he declared, and would continue to be in danger until the neutrality bill was passed.

"I agree with everything you say about the evils of profiteering and the desirability of taking prompt action to curb them," Roosevelt in effect told the congressmen. "But there are other matters far more urgent. I can tell you gentlemen that there is a desperate need to get the neutrality bill through congress at the earliest possible moment.

"Until we have an airtight neutrality law on the books, we will have our guard down and be open to all kinds of incidents involving our country in the European conflict. This is a dangerous position to be in, and I can't stress too strongly the word dangerous."

The liberals were impressed by this statement, but they still clung to their demand. "I have no doubt that what you say is true, Mr. President," persisted Representative John Coffee, Washington New Dealer, "but we have a bill all ready and . . ."

"John, there are a lot more angles to this profiteering problem than you perhaps realize," Roosevelt broke in. "We have been studying it and it's not so simple as you think. I suggest that you folks get together with various authorities in the government who have been working on the matter before you decide definitely on a bill.

"In other works," he added with a smile, "get up your homework and then come back and see me in January."

Goodbye, New Deal.

"But, Mr. President," demurred Representative Lee Geyer of California, "I don't think this matter can wait that long. I agree with you that the embargo should be repealed with all possible haste. But profiteering is a mighty serious problem, and a lot of harm can be done to American consumers between now and January."

"That may be true," replied Roosevelt, "but let's get the biggest problem out of the way first. You must remember you can always make an excess profits tax retroactive. We simply cannot afford any delay on this neutrality issue."

When he finished talking a silence fell on the group for a few moments and then, sighing deeply, Roosevelt added:

"This war in Europe is certainly throwing a monkey-wrench into our New Deal. I shudder to think what may happen to our reforms as a result of measures we may be forced to take to protect ourselves in this tragic world turmoil. What especially worries me is that labor may suffer if it ever becomes necessary to de-emphasize the functions of the Labor Board and Wage-Hour administration."

His Name Led All the Rest.

When Harold Ickes was Public Works administrator, his PWA projects bore an inexpensive copper plaque which read:

Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works
Franklin D. Roosevelt
President
Harold L. Ickes
Administrator

But when John Carmody, the new Federal Works administrator, took over PWA, he immediately changed the bronze plaques even on the buildings which Ickes had built but which lacked a few weeks or days of being actually completed. After his name comes the name of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Note—On plaques for any projects begun under a previous president, Ickes always gave credit to that president. For instance, the Boulder dam plaque bears the name of Herbert Hoover as well as Ray Lyman Wilbur, his secretary of interior, and of course Roosevelt's and Ickes' names.

Diplomatic Chaff.

Now that the smoke of battle has blown away, authentic reports from Poland indicate that Field Marshal Smigly-Rydz never left Warsaw for the front. His troops struggled along as best they might without his personal leadership. . . . The diplomatic pouch also brings word that when President Moscicki and Foreign Minister Beck left Warsaw for Rumania they did so without informing the Polish people. Excuse for this secrecy was that they did not want to be bombed by the Germans. But first word Warsaw had of the departure came from German radio announcements which broadcast the whereabouts of the presidential train as it passed through each town. . . . Cordell Hull gave a diplomatic and consular letter of introduction to Dr. Joseph F. Thorning, leading Franco exponent in the United States, when Thorning went to Spain to interview General Franco.

Danger Spot.

They are not saying anything about it, but worried administration chiefs are beginning to wonder whether the final showdown won't find the house, not the senate, deciding the fate of neutrality.

When the battle opened, leaders were confident that if they could win the senate, the house would be a push-over. But reports in recent days indicate a disquieting undercover situation there.

Inside tips have come from a number of state delegations that members whose votes were considered certain are far from in the bag. One reported instance is the five Massachusetts Democrats, normally administration supporters but now secretly split 4-to-1 against embargo repeal.

Several of the liberal bloc are either completely off the reservation or else on the fence.

It is not general realized that the house, unlike the senate, voted on the embargo at the last session and turned down repeal by 41 votes. It is true that due to inefficient floor leadership some 50 Democrats were absent. Even so, turning over 41 votes on as hot an issue as the embargo is no easy job.

Administration leaders have just awakened to the fact that while they have been concentrating all their efforts in the senate, Coughlinites, the bund, pacifist and other pro-embargo forces have been putting tremendous pressure on representatives. Illustrative was the action of Father Francis E. Caffery of the Old Mission at San Juan Bautista, Cal., calling on his parishioners to deluge Representative John Anderson with letters demanding he oppose embargo repeal.

There is every indication that this organized pressure is having its effect. Congressmen always are more susceptible to outside heat. They not only come up for election every two years but their constituencies are much smaller than those of senators.

'A Happy Woman'

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I STARTED on my journey just as light began to kindle in the east. The smaller stars had faded, but the large morning star shone brilliantly. The massive scenery of the eastern sky was shifting silently, by unseen forces. Tall pointed scarlet fronds of light moved upward and outward from a common center. In a few moments it would be sunrise of a perfect October morning.

I was happy. The meadowlarks sang on the wing, and in secluded hollows of the field. Purple and white asters bloomed along the way. Moist meadows glistened in the sun that painted the varied slopes in motley colors. Then I came to a neat, low cottage where crepe was on the door, and my mood was saddened. I thought, to that lifeless form, the beauty of all October mornings is gone forever. The silver thread is broken.

When I returned two days following, new expensive cars were parked on both sides of the road, along with old time models, and several buggies and surries. The horses were hitched to the weathered stake and rider fence. People stood in groups about the yard and talked.

I parked along the roadside, too, and stood near two men who were conversing.

"One of the finest Christian women who ever lived," I heard one say. "I was eight when my mother died, and my father had to leave me at home alone while he worked. This good woman came over one day and asked to keep my company. She was so kind, and seemed to love me so much that I forgot my grief. I felt safe and satisfied in her presence. She taught me her favorite Psalms by heart, and read me better literature than I have ever seen since."

"Her two boys were killed in the World war," the other said. "She didn't cry when she told them goodbye—but I saw her face when they were out of sight, and I never forgot it. I came often to visit her, because, as a growing boy, she seemed to reach into my heart. Whenever I left here I always longed for things she did not tell. She was a happy woman. I learned from her the things worth while to live by more than I ever got from school and college. Here's what I found in her Bible just this morning. It will mean something to you, as it did to me . . ." he unfolded a piece of paper from his pocket.

"I have loved this little cottage . . ." he read aloud, "the flowers, the hills and valleys that surround it. It has been a good place to live. I leave it to all those who pass by and can enjoy it. I shall not need it any more, for when this is read I shall be living in a house not made with hands."

My day was richer as I drove on home.

CRIME TEARS ON + + + + +

CHAPTER XXVII.

"I most certainly do not know, and I call for an explanation."

"The explanation is simply this. You called at my office in New York, yesterday morning and asked me what were the prospects of your receiving any money from the Madison estate. I told you I would be over here soon and would give all details of the legal settlement of the estate. It will be a long process, and there is much to be done in the way of appraisal and valuation, but the fact remains there will be no bequests or legacies."

"I am not interested in the settlement of Mr. Madison's estate. But I want to state clearly to you all, that I did not go to Mr. Kellog's office in the city, yesterday morning or any other time."

"Kellogg's eyebrows went up to a surprising height, and he spoke in a clear, cold voice.

"Much as I regret to contradict a lady, I must tell you all, that Miss Verne certainly did come to see me, on the errand I have told you of. I attended to her call personally, and I assert her presence. She was wearing the gown she has on now, and a black coat lined with white and a black hat, with a bit of white in the trimming. She gave her name as Yvette Verne."

All eyes were on Avis (Yvette's assumed name) She looked the picture of consternation and despair.

Though shocked at the idea of the girl's mercenary errand, Cornelia could not doubt Kellogg's detailed account. But her kind heart went out to the girl her brother had loved, and she motioned for Avis to come over and sit by her.

But Craig, who sat at Avis' side, held her hand and would not let her go. Twice the girl started to speak, but could not. She seemed even more distracted than the occasion called for. She was shown up as mercenary and grasping, but that was not a crime. Yet had she been accused of murder she could not have been more heart-stricken and unnerved.

She gave Craig a piteous glance, and, understanding, they both rose and he led her from the room.

They went to the study, and Craig closed and locked the door

He took her in his arms and soothed her tenderly, and said:

"You must give up, Avis darling, you can't go on"

"I can't give up, Craig I must go on—any way until the divorce is settled."

"You must tell Cornelia, then. It is her right."

"I will do that. She is very kind and dear."

There was a knock at the door, and opening it, Craig saw the Sergeant, who usually kept in the background.

"Mr. Sutton bid me tell you, that you must return to the inquiry," he said.

"Both of us?" asked Craig. "Can't Miss Verne go to her room?"

"My orders are to bring you both back."

Monday morning Sutton began his session at 10 o'clock. He had adjourned the inquiry the day before, in order to get further information. He told of his investigation of the case against Baretti, the under-gardener.

"Nothing to it," he declared. "The man is hot-blooded, with no brains and no reason He felt he was not getting high enough wages, simply because, Nelson, the head gardener, got more than he did. I had heard he had threatened to kill Mr. Madison. I asked Nelson about this, and he told me Baretti did say it, but he had also threatened to kill every other man on the place, including Mr. Madison's two nephews. Nelson said such threats meant nothing; it was merely Baretti's habit of speech."

"Yes, he's like that," Craig observed; "one day I picked some of his pet flowers—he was experimenting on them, I believe—and he flew into a rage and vowed he would kill me. At least, I think he did, but as his speech was a mixture of Italian and broken English, I could not swear to his intent. However, I can't think he possibly could get into my uncle's room and kill him."

"No, he couldn't," agreed Cornelia. "Baretti has never been in the house, expect in the kitchen quarters, for his meals. He lives in one of the outside servant's lodges."

"I think we can leave Baretti out of it," Sutton went on. "I advise, Miss Madison, that you give him a suitable amount of money, and send him away."

"I shall be glad to do so," Cornelia said.

Sutton asked a few more questions, which seemed to Fleming Stone somewhat meaningless, and suggested to him that the man was working up to a climax.

"I have the reports from the finger-print department, and I may say that this book I hold here, is the one mentioned by Mr. Craig Madison, as being a mystery story, in which a murder was committed in precisely the same way that Harley Madison was killed. The fingerprint people report various prints through the book, but many more of Mr. Craig Madison's than those of any one else. Moreover, they find that the pages in the book, descriptive of the peculiar method used, are more full of Mr. Madison's prints than any other pages, which proves that he devoted much time and study to the subject.

"I hold, therefore, that we are justified in accusing Mr. Craig Madison of his uncle's murder."

At first, Craig stared at the speaker blankly, and then his face reddened, and with difficulty he refrained from angry words.

Cornelia, too, seemed about to speak, but hesitated as she looked at Craig. It was Fleming Stone who spoke first.

"I think," he said, "that your reasoning is wrong, Mr. Sutton. To my way of thinking, if Craig Madison were the criminal in this case, he would never have told of a book that gave instructions in this manner of murder, nor would he have left in existence the said bood, that could be brought in evidence against him. Those two points suggest to me, that Craig Madison could not have killed his uncle."

"We look at the matter from different angles, Mr. Stone," Sutton returned. "As you must know, all criminals are apt to overlook the evidence existing, and I think, that Mr. Madison's reference to the book that told how to commit this very clever murder, was an act of bravado on his part."

"That is merely your surmise, Mr. Sutton, which, I contend is founded on insufficient data. When this very clever murder, was discovered, it was enetirely natural that Craig should remember the same occurrence in a detective story he had once read. But, had he been the murderer, it is inconceivable that he should have mentioned the story and told of his memory of it! Any disinterested person will agree to that. I hold that you are trying to fasten this crime where it does not belong, because you have no surer suspect in mind."

"But the evidence of the numerous fingerprints on that page of the book, is not all I have to base my decision on, by any means."

"Please tell us of your further knowledge, then."

"The main elements of a murder mystery are motive, means and opportunity. Mr. Madison possessed these almost exclusively. As to motive, his uncle had won from him the girl he loved. That, as we all know, is one of the most usual motive for murder. The means, according to his own statement, he had read in a book, which gave full details of the method. Opportunity, I hold that he alone, or nearly so, possessed."

"And what was this mysterious and exclusive opportunity?"

"A simple matter. Craig went upstairs that night, shortly before his uncle did. He waited until Mr. Madison came upstairs, and then joined him in the hall and went to his room with him, or perhaps, waited until his uncle was inside his bedroom, and then tapped lightly at the door. His uncle would, of course, let him in, and then Craig had the field to himself."

Stone looked at the speaker a little quizzically.

"Then you assume," he said, "that Craig sat there and waited, while his uncle undressed, got into bed, and fell into a peaceful sleep. That the young man then murdered him in the fashion he had learned from his book and calmly went his way."

"Something of the kind," Sutton said, striving to hide his chagrin at Stone's ironic summing up. "It would not be incredible that Mr. Harley Madison should retire while his nephew sat in the room. Also, remember that Mr. Madison had been drugged before he was killed. That was reported after the autopsy. He was therefore, unusually sleepy, and scarce knew what he was doing. It was, of course, the murderer who drugged him, and who else had opportunity, except Craig?"

"Your argument is entirely your own fabrication," Stone said, quietly enough, but with a glint in his eye that egged Sutton to further accusations.

"And, as we have agreed, the probabilities are that whoever killed Mr. Madison, is also the murderer of Mrs. Garson."

"With what motive?" Stone asked.

Informally Speaking...

By MARIANNE

WHEN the weather's as warm as mid-summer (and it certainly has been recently), it's hard to settle down to any very serious thoughts about winter coats, but today's little chill is likely the sign that a cold snap will arrive over night, so perhaps it's best to be prepared—especially since the downtown stores are showing all kinds of attractive and practical models.

Marianne

If you're in need of a dressy coat this season, and you're tired of the usual black or brown, why not brighten up your wardrobe with a gay color? Something really different I saw while shopping yesterday was a swagger style coat made from material of a deep plum shade topped with a collar of lynx dyed fox—which was most luxuriant—forming a fluffy deep square in the back and a fissure front. . . . Or perhaps you'd like a coat of dark green which looks like it came from the heart of a forest—and the material is tree bark weave so that it looks even more woodsy—and a full rippling collar of light lynx makes a flattering neckline.

* * *

In case you feel that you need a coat that can be worn for more occasions and with more costumes than a bright colored one, one of the popular new beiges is probably just what you're looking for. . . . I saw two attractive swagger styles downtown yesterday—one of soft nude wool was trimmed with brown muskrat from the wrist to the elbow of the sleeves. . . . The other beige swagger model had fur trim at the neckline—a circular collar of lynx dyed fox.

* * *

IT'S ALWAYS NICE to have something a little different from what folks usually wear to dress-up parties, and that's just what you'll have if you get the smart little frock I saw in one of the local shops yesterday. . . . It was fashioned along fitted princess lines with a dark brown crepe skirt and chartreuse satin top—the tiny brown jacket closes with chartreuse buttons and buttonholes worked in thread of the same light shade. . . . Another jacket dress (this time in black) was made along princess lines with black fullness, and the fitted jacket was piped with black velvet and closed with triangular rhinestone clips.

* * *

Costume jewelry seems somehow to work all kinds of magic for dresses new or old, and downtown stores have some this season that's really quite different from any I've ever seen before. . . . All these styles I'm going to mention can be purchased in clips, pins, pendants and bracelets—lustrous black catalin has been brightened up with multi-colored porcelain flowers. . . . Miniature clusters of grapes tinted in light pastel shades of rose, green and dubonnet with fine leather stems decorate crystal catalin jewelry. . . . And tiny acorns with leather stems form the motif on burnt sugar accessories. . . . They're all delightfully different, and one (if not all) of the styles is sure to please you.

* * *

MISCELLANEOUS FOR MEN: While costume jewelry does a lot toward brightening up milady's dresses, there are also many accessories that will change the appearance of a gentleman's new or old suit. . . . For instance, some of the local stores are showing Tally Ho flannel shirts (they're really cotton imported from England) in light shades of blue, green and tan. . . . And there are numerous new notes in ties—imported Swiss, French and English silks and brocades in all colors. . . . Bonnie Mist poplins in all colors and styles of stripes and plaids. . . . And plain gabardines shading from beige and powder blue to dark green, red and navy. . . . And if you're looking for better fitting hose, better try some of six-three ribbed lisle in bright scotch plaids or plain tones.

Note: The styles described above are available in Mansfield shops. You can learn where they may be obtained if you will telephone Marianne at The News-Journal between 1 and 2:30 p. m.—Canal 4251.

Daughters Have Guest at Session

There will be a card party for members and friends at the hall on Nov. 13. The next regular meeting will be held on Nov. 23 at the hall.

During the afternoon members of the Past Presidents' club held their regular meeting with 10 in attendance. A covered-dish dinner was served at a long table decorated with pink roses and white chrysanthemums. A gavel was presented to the group by Mrs. Tom Bell from the late S. Fin Bell, a former state commander of the Sons of Union Veterans, who used the gavel during his period of office.

The next meeting will be Nov. 6 at the Memorial building. Red Cross bandages will be rolled at this time, and hostesses are Mrs. Charlotte Kramer and Mrs. Bell.

Parent-Teacher Groups Conduct Meetings, Socials

With the arrival of school days, P. T. A. nights become an important item in the schedule of Mansfield parents. Last night a number of the city's groups met. Reports of some of them follow.

Mrs. W. J. Dormaier was in charge of the Bushnell association meeting at the school when Miss Lois MacKellar gave a talk on "The Library in Education" and H. W. Arlin talked on the three-mill levy. Mrs. G. C. Ferguson announced that the association will sponsor the showing of "The Cavalcade of Civilization, and "Cascading Rhythm Lights" at the Senior high school Oct. 20.

Group singing and a spelling bee followed. The prize was won by Mrs. F. M. Phillips, and Miss Ruth Maffet's room won the prize for having the most mothers present. The evening hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Dormaier and Mr. and Mrs. V. E. Broach.

Miss Genieve Diesem, school nurse, gave an explanation and demonstration of pupil examination last night at the meeting of the Newman P. T. A. which was held at the school with Mrs. Don Weaver in charge. E. C. Kissel, principal of the school, talked on the three-mill levy, and Mrs. J. B.
